King and Queen are Pleased Over Great Ovation

VIEW EXHIBITS

Sovereigns to Arrive Late Today at Roosevelt Hyde Park Home

New York — (P) — The king and queen of England, regally calm but flushed with pleasure at the mighty ovation that delayed their progress through the city, arrived at the New York world's fair today for a quick inspection of British exhibits.

Their closely guarded limousine passed through the gate at 12:38 p. m. E. D. T. (10:38 C. S. T.) more than half an hour behind schedule. Fair authorities estimated that more than 600,000 persons would see the royal couple before they left for Columbia university.

The entrance was cleared of everyone but police and those with credentials from the federal government.

Two dozen full-blooded Indians, holding world's fair flags, stood at attention.

Their majesties, first reigning British sovereigns ever to visit the city that once served as headquarters of the American Revolution, went to the fair grounds direct from the Battery.

Arriving from Fort Hancock, N. J., where they boarded the U. S. destroyer Warrington after an overnight train ride from Washington, the royal couple was greeted by city and state dignitaries and by a roaring crowd that had been gathering since daybreak.

After stepping off the Warrington onto a bright red plush carpet they were greeted by Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and others. Mrs. LaGuardia presented the smiling queen with a corsage of roses.

The greatest concentration of police ever called out for such an event pressed back the crowds as the royal party entered open—but bullet-proof—automobiles for the ride to the fair.

Long before the king and queen arrived, thousands of persons crowded into the half-mile-square Court of Peace in front of the federal building.

As their majesties entered the fair grounds, soldiers at Fort George Washington, a temporary fort, delivered a 21-gun salute.

Their majesties left their car at Perylon hall for the official reception by Governor A. Whalen, president of the fair corporation, Mrs. Whalen and other fair officials.

In the hall, its walls hung with eighteenth century tapestries and

Heil Signs Bill For Abolition of Farm Authority

Also Approves Exemption Of One-Room Teachers From Tenure Act

Madison — (P) — Bills abolishing the Wisconsin Agricultural Authority and exempting teachers in one-room schools from the 1937 tenure act were signed by Governor Heil and became law upon publication today.

Assemblyman Herbert C. Schenk (P) Madison, sponsored the tenure exemption act.

Author of the WAA repealer was Senator Taylor Brown (R) Oshkosh. Functions of this agency, which was created under the La Follette reorganization act of 1937, would be taken over by the consolidated Wisconsin promotional department planned by the Heil administration. The WAA had an appropriation of $50,000 a year.

The governor also approved the Gettelman bill authorizing Milwaukee county to appropriate funds to a city-county crime control commission.

The securities division was created as an independent state department under the Cockley act.

For years it had been under the public service commission. Former Governor LaFollette transferred it to the banking commission and the present legislature revoked the transfer.

Secret Bride Took Own Life, Inquest Finding

Kankakee, Ill. — (P) — A coroner's jury decided last night that Mrs. Eleanor McMurry, 17-year-old Kankakee, secret bride, committed suicide.

She was found by her husband, William, mortally wounded Thursday night in his automobile on a highway near Mokena, a rifle bullet wound in her head.

Nagle, who said he kept two rifles in his car to shoot small game, and the dead girl's father, John McMurry, both insisted that she killed herself accidentally. Shortly before the shooting Mrs. Nagle took out a book, "Wine of Good Hope," at the Mokena library, and the librarian said she seemed to be in a cheerful mood.

Former Veterinarian Named To Succeed Dr. Hiram Evans As Imperial Wizard of Klan

Atlanta, Ga. — (P) — James Arnold Colecott, 49-year-old former veterinarian, succeeded Dr. Hiram W. Evans, one-time dentist, as imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan today.

A portly, bald native of Terre Haute, Ind., Colecott had served two years as Evans' chief of staff.

Chosen as a secret "klonvocation" by representatives from 30 states, he declared he planned a four-year "administration of action" and—outlining policy as chief of the hooded order—said the Klan strove to promote interests of the "native-born, white, Protestant gentile" population of America.

"Doubtless," he added, "the well-organized minority groups will take care of their interests. It's at least their problem."

Preceding the announcement of his election, Dr. Evans, who aided in re-establishing the Klan in post-World War days and had served as its head since 1922, denied reports of internal dissension over policy.

"In all its long and chequered career," he said, "there has never been division within the Klan."

The retiring imperial wizard attracted comment six months ago by attending church in Atlanta by invitation of Bishop Gerald P. O'Hara. Anti-Catholicism was once a major point of the Klan program.

"Some criticized me for coming," said Dr. Evans, "others praised me. Those who criticized I can only say I believe I am right."

CHARGE GOVERNESS WITH KIDNAPING

A comely governess who told police her name was Miss Margaret Polly Well, here is shown with Krehe Osborn, 5, after she was charged in San Francisco with kidnaping the boy. Arrested in San Jose, Calif., Miss Well, 19, told police she wanted $1,600 ransom to pay the mortgage on my mother's farm at Nassau, N. Y.

San Francisco Police Suspect Girl Who Confessed Kidnaping Young Boy Had Male Accomplice

Nicholas Klink Is Facing Trial

Former Head of Dodge County Poor Farm Accused of Neglect

San Francisco — (P) — Police sought a possible male accomplice today of an upstate New York farm girl who gambled and lost in her quest for easy money by seizing five-year-old Krehe Osborn and holding him for $1,600 ransom.

Though the girl, Margaret Polly Well, denied she had any help in her amateurish plan, police continued to make a close check of her associates. Police said they were not satisfied with her explanation.

Miss Well disappeared with the Osborn boy Wednesday afternoon. Twenty-seven hours later she was arrested in a San Jose hotel, 50 miles from here, with the child in her possession, unharmed.

The thin veil of mystery which hid her identity was lifted yesterday when the pretty 18-year-old girl finally revealed her true name after giving two aliases. A check with the girl's mother, Mrs. Graham Weil, Nassau, N. Y., confirmed the identity.

Admits Theft

She said she demanded the ransom "to pay the mortgage on my mother's farm," but police said she had sent no money home since she left there last December to look for a job.

In that interval, officers said, Miss Well admitted robbing the home of two employers in Chicago and Hollywood of clothing and jewelry valued at $4,000 while working as a maid.

In an interview the girl revealed what might have been her true motive. Failing to get a remunerative job, she said she decided the wise thing to do was to go back home.

"But I couldn't go back home broke, like a beaten dog," she explained. "I wanted to go back in style, with money, as I had visioned myself doing, and to accomplish that I kidnaped little Krehe Osborn."

Instead, she was held in $50,000 cash bail, charged with kidnaping for ransom with possibility of life imprisonment. Her preliminary hearing was set for June 19 yesterday while authorities investigated her case further.

Grand Jurors Indict Seven Labor Officials

Kansas City — (P) — A Jackson county grand jury indicted seven labor officials today on charges of illegal picketing of stores which have handled products under ban by labor unions. The names of those indicted were kept secret pending arrest.

The grand jury held a session last night after A. F. of L. unions began picketing four chair grocery stores. Union officials said the picketing was in protest against the sale of butter, coffee, flour and ice from companies held by union labor to be unfair.

Hugh S. O'Neill, secretary of the Central Labor union, said today he knew nothing about the picketing although in the past he always had been consulted in such moves.

Nazis Delay Added Reprisals Against Czechs in Slaving

Prague — (P) — An official announcement said tonight that further reprisals against the Czech population of Kladno would be withheld even after expiration of a deadline for solution of the mysterious killing of a German police sergeant Thursday.

The announcement was made at 7 o'clock p. m. (12 p. m. C. S. T.) only an hour before the time set for producing the slayer or slayers.

It said that results so far in the investigation of the slaying, the attitude of the Czech people and stern measures already in force made it possible to withhold temporarily planned new "restrictive measures" to break Czech resistance to Germany's protectorate over Bohemia-Moravia.

Leaves Canceled While Police Hunt Bombers

London — (P) — Weekend leaves of scores of officers in 20 divisions of the metropolitan police were canceled today because of persistent bomb violence blamed on the illegal Irish republican army.

A smoldering mailbag, flaming letterbox and a parcel explosion in separate incidents today were added to incendiary bomb explosions throughout England last night.

Two men were injured slightly when the small explosives burst within a space of an hour and a half. Small flames broke out in more than 20 London mail boxes last night.

Report Hitler Ready to Map Peace Program

Paris Hears Fuehrer Will Suggest Settlement Of Problems

WILL SPEAK IN JULY

German Press Continues Attacks on Lord Halifax Speech

Paris — (P) — Reports, reached French diplomatic circles from usually well-informed sources in Berlin today to the effect that Adolf Hitler was preparing specific proposals to France, Britain and the United States for a settlement of the problems which are causing world war fears.

The reports, which received no open official confirmation, said that Hitler was expected to make the proposals in a speech during the last part of July at the launching of a new German warship.

He now is working on them at Berchtesgaden, the report said, but there has been no hint of their nature.

Recall Halifax Speech

Some diplomatic circles recalled the house of lords speech of Viscount Halifax, British foreign minister Thursday night in which he told of Britain's willingness to examine such problems at the conference table if Germany would renounce any threat of force. Diplomats said this speech might have been the key to the reichs-fuehrer's reported decision.

Diplomats in Paris said they were unable to reconcile reports of Hitler's plans with continuing German press attacks against the British secretary's speech.

Some suggested, however, that demands in German newspapers that Britain show her intentions by "actions, not words" might be the finite proposition of preparing for definite proposals.

Other diplomats asserted that Germany and Italy were becoming more disturbed by economic offensives being waged by Britain and France.

Two Firemen Die In Madison Blaze

Trapped in Basement of Burning Building; Third Man Injured

Madison — (P) — Two firemen were burned to death today when they were trapped in the basement of a burning building on S. Park street.

The dead men were Judd Holcombe and Adolph Habisch, both assigned to No. 2 company.

The victims fell into the basement when the first floor of a combination bakery shop, grocery store and barber shop collapsed.

William Parr, another fireman from No. 2 company was injured.

The two men who were trapped could not be reached because of smoke and the debris piled upon them.

The fire started underneath the Mary Ann bakeshop. Three companies were called to fight the blaze.

Madison Honeyymooners Injured in Car Crash

Jackson, Wyo. — (P) — Mr. and Mrs. Elmer C. Bryan, Madison, Wis., returning home from a honeymoon in Yellowstone national park, were injured seriously last night when their car went out of control on the Teton-Yellowstone park highway.

The bride, formerly of Milwaukee, Wis., suffered a broken shoulder, cuts and bruises. Her husband, an employee of the University of Wisconsin, was bruised about the head. Dr. L. B. Lawton, Teton county health officer, said he may have a slight concussion.

Both regained consciousness at a Jackson hospital. Dr. Lawton said both would recover.

Policeman Interrupts Burglary: Nabs Youth

Milwaukee — (P) — Patrolman Henry J. Gold interrupted a burglary at the Golden Harvest Dairy company plant early today after two youths had piled up 250 pounds of butter in front of the plant preparatory to carting it away in an automobile.

Mass arrested one of the pair, 21, who was in the car, while the other fled. Later, another 21-year-old youth and a 28-year-old man to whom they said they had sold butter stolen previously were taken into custody.

Mass Immigration Ordered To Check Spread of Typhoid Fever Epidemic in West

Sequim, Wash. — (P) — Mass immigration of persons within several miles of this Duwamish valley trading center was the object of authorities today to quickly end what they termed a major outbreak of typhoid fever.

Red Cross state and county officials in combating the malady, which has stricken 82 school children and one teacher among the 600 persons in the northeastern Olympic peninsula town. There have been no deaths.

About 1,000 persons already have been immunized. Yesterday a long line of men, women and children from the surrounding valley took their turn before health authorities to receive immunization treatment.

Two children in the line had been already afflicted with the malady and running high temperatures.

Dr. Donald Evans, state director of health, said the epidemic was the state's worst in recent years, but now was under control.

Sources of the disease were attributed to a lack of refrigeration in a school lunchroom.

Dr. A. U. Simpson, chief of the health department's laboratory division, said 208 buns, left over from a traveling carnival and accepted as a donation by the school, may have been the source of the epidemic. He said the buns all but stood for some time at room temperatures.

Another possible source was potatoes salad for which the potatoes had been peeled the night before,

Social Security Changes Receive House Approval

Broader Control Over State Pay Rolls and Purchases Is Proposed for Governor Heil

Madison — (P) — A finance committee bill introduced in the assembly yesterday proposes to bestow upon Governor Heil a measure of the control he would like to exercise over the size of the state pay roll and the purchases of state departments.

How much control was a question which bobbed up in anti-administration circles when the contents of the brief bill were examined.

Concisely, it would forbid the employment of any person by any board, commission, department, bureau or institution without first proving to the governor that the employment was necessary. This takes in all agencies of the state government.

Another prohibition would be placed on the purchase of materials and equipment except under rules and regulations laid down by the chief executive.

The bill was introduced at the request of the executive office with an unofficial explanation — that it was intended to put the reins on any future additions to the pay roll and establish a check on purchases by prescribing the specifications.

Heil Says Hands Tied

The governor's political opponents professed to see further implications and too large a grant of power over the state service personnel because of the broad language of the bill.

The objectives will be aired when the measure comes up for public hearing but it was regarded as a step in the direction of changing conditions about which Heil complained in recent speeches. He said that in seeking to give the state the kind of management he desires he had found his hands tied.

This bill and the $27,500,000 tax bill received in the assembly from the executive office during the week are signs of some stormy legislative days still to come.

The finance committee has scheduled the tax bill for hearing Wednesday.

Lobbies already are formed to sweep down upon the committee in opposition to the proposed taxes on "non-essentials." The cigarette and tobacco interests and the automobile dealers plan to resist taxation of their products—they would be affected by new levies—and the liquor, wine and beer industries will oppose the increase asked in present taxes upon them.

Similar protests are expected from the soft drink manufacturers.

Since tax bills nearly always draw out a vigorous opposition side, it has been presumed here that someone would be on hand to fight the proposed broadening of the income tax base, which would take in more than 80,000 new taxpayers by a lowering of exemptions and make everyone pay a share to the teachers retirement fund.

REELECTED
Wausau — (P) — Harry Jack, (above) of Oshkosh last night was reelected president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool. Bernard Brandt of Oconto was elected vice president. H. F. Dries of Oshkosh is the new secretary-treasurer. The pool, which met at Rothschild Park pavilion near Wausau, closed its annual session last night.

Foes of Proposed Neutrality Plan In New Campaign

Threaten 'Extensive' Debate if Revision Is Brought Up

Washington — (P) — Reports that President Roosevelt plans tentatively to go to the San Francisco world's fair the last week in July spurred congressional opponents of neutrality revision today to fresh activity.

They pressed their campaign for state signers of a round-robin condemning the administration's neutrality stand, contending that if the president is considering a westward trip before adjournment, he does not expect revision of the law at this session.

The round-robin, said to have been approved already by a dozen senators, was expected to threaten "extensive" debate is leaders bring up proposals recommended by Secretary Hull. These would repeal the present arms embargo and permit designation of danger zones in which American shipping would be banned in war-time.

Await House Action

Observing that neutrality legislation appeared to be the only stumbling block in the way to a projected July 15 adjournment of congress, Democratic Leader Barkley said house action would be awaited before the question was taken up in the senate.

Administration leaders, who had placed the revisions on their list of major objectives for this session, were encouraged by their success in defeating yesterday every attempt to alter the committee suggestions.

The revisions would liberalize social security benefits and extend them to additional classes of workers.

Minnesota Greet Norwegian Royalty

Fergus Falls, Minn. — (P) — Accompanied by rains that heightened spirits of residents in this farming area, Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha of Norway were given a joyous reception in Minnesota today.

Police Believe Dynamite Bomb Planted in Bakery Truck

Moorhead, Minn. — (P) — Milton Lee, 28, son of a bakery company operator, was killed instantly today when a dynamite bomb believed by police to have been planted in a bakery truck exploded. The explosion mangled his body, tearing one leg from the torso.

His father, John S. Lee, head of the Northwest Bakery company, told police a man had telephoned him a week ago, saying "I'm serving notice on you right now that we'll get you."

The elder baker, whose plant was picketed in a labor dispute last year, said he had refused the demand of the unidentified caller for immediate negotiations with a union because "we had not been treated fairly."

The younger Lee had returned to Fargo only a few days ago after attending a bakery school in Chicago.

Must Serve Term for Violation of Parole

Fond du Lac, Wis. — (P) — Circuit Judge Clayton F. Van Pelt yesterday ordered William Erdman, 24, to serve one to two years in Green Bay reformatory for parole violation as the result of his recent arrest on a charge of beating his 14-month-old son.

Erdman, resident of Westfield township, Marquette county, received a one to two year suspended sentence for non-support, a year ago.

Federation Auto Union Threatens To Tie Up Plants

Demands General Motors Negotiations on Collective Bargaining

Detroit.—(AP)—The A. F. of L. automobile workers union threatened today an extensive tie-up of General Motors plants if the corporation does not open collective bargaining negotiations with it.

Hardly had the U. A. W. A. faction headed by Homer Martin been restored its old American Federation of Labor charter when it called strikes in three General Motors factories at Flint and Saginaw.

The management denied, however, that the strikes called Thursday were effective. R. J. Thomas, president of the rival U. A. W. A. branch affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, said they were "a complete failure."

Says Plants Are Closed

Elmer Dowell, head of General Motors activities in the A. F. of L. U. A. W. A., declared that "contrary to reports, the plants in Flint are closed, and the Saginaw plant will be closed down if it tries to operate."

He referred to the Chevrolet assembly plant and the Fisher Body plant No. 1 at Flint and the Chevrolet Grey Iron foundry at Saginaw.

"If negotiations are not started, Dowell added, 'a sufficient number of plants will be shut down to see that negotiations are begun.'"

Saginaw police armed with tear gas and riot sticks kept picket lines moving at the foundry today as approximately one-half of a maintenance crew of 130 men entered the plant for weekend work. Three men were arrested when scattered fist-fighting broke out.

W. S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation in a statement today said: "The corporation's policy is not to take sides between the Martin and the Thomas factions. Each side claims to speak for the U. A. W. A. but the question of which side has the authority to speak for the union of automobile workers is now before the courts of the state of Michigan for decision. Until a decision is made by competent authority, the corporation must remain neutral."

"The corporation is and at all times has been prepared to bargain with duly authorized representatives of the employees. . . ."

"There are no known grievances in any plant of such importance that they would at all justify any stoppage."

A "test of strength" is due Monday, A. F. of L.-U. A. W. A. leaders said, when they plan to picket the Chevrolet and Fisher units. Operations are scheduled to be resumed then after the weekend holiday.

New York Crowds Delay Royalty On Visit to Fair

its floor covered with a magnificent carpet into which a medallion was woven, the king and queen signed the guest book.

Mrs. Winthrop Aldrich, wife of the banker, presented to Queen Elizabeth a bouquet of orchids and carried as she withdrew. Their majesties sat down on a small platform where groups of visitors were presented formally.

Outside, throngs had gathered in long lines, ready for presentation to their majesties. They were the lucky ones holding credentials.

As the king greeted those who passed in front of him, he repeatedly smiled warmly.

Fascist Salute

There was an audible gasp from the crowd in the chamber when Admiral Cantu, Italian commissioner-general at the fair, bowed before their majesties and, as he raised up, extended his arm in the fascist salute.

Only 150 couples, out of the 280 scheduled to meet their majesties, paid their formal respects. The rest, looking frankly disappointed, were presented en masse.

At 12:59 Whelan remarked that the party was behind schedule. Then lunch was served.

Before their majesties left the chamber for luncheon—which included champagne—they were presented with a gold troyon and crystal scepters, the fair symbols.

Light rain started falling in between bursts of sunlight.

Amid a spectacular pageantry ashore, at sea and in the air, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of Britain stepped off the United States destroyer Warrington to climax their epic tour of North America.

Reception At Battery

After a formal reception at the Battery, lowermost tip of Manhattan, the royal visitors stepped into bullet-proof limousines for a whirlwind drive to the New York world's fair to inspect their domains.

The batteries of Governors island pounded out a 21-gun salute as their majesties rode up the harbor; vessels of every description fired their whistles down; fireboats sent great jets of water into the air; airplanes wheeled gracefully overhead and a teeming crowd that had waited hours under a hot sun gave out a mighty roar of welcome.

Martial music filled the air and flags and bunting splashed all downtown New York with the bright red white and blue of two nations.

With the cheers of thousands still ringing in their ears, the king and queen left the Battery and nearby Bowling Green, where irate colonial patriots once tore down a statue of King George III, and headed northward over the cobblestones of West street.

King Waves At Crowd

The motorcade, a procession of 13 cars, drew slowly away from the pier and, after a few blocks, ascended a ramp to the west side elevated highway, overlooking the Hudson river docks.

The king stood up as the procession started, doffed his hat, and waved his hand. The queen smiled.

Pair Moving, 8-Year Bridge Game Ended

Omaha, Neb.—(AP)—The eight-year bridge game of Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Overgard and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Russell is over with Dr. Overgard top scorer. He had 1,456,280 points.

The game, started in 1931 and played every Monday night, ended this week because Dr. and Mrs. Overgard are moving to Houston, Texas.

It ended (they swear its true) with never a partner's ace being trumped.

Fat Production Honors are Won By Paltzer Herd

Holsteins Show 50.3-Pound Average During May in Testing Group

Robert Paltzer's, route 3, Appleton, herd of 15 registered Holsteins captured high production honors in the Outagamie Dairy Herd Improvement association, No. 5, in May with an average of 50.3 pounds of butterfat, according to Melvin Haferbecker, tester.

The Paul Kroes, route 1, Kaukauna, Holstein herd was second with a 43.9-pound average. Third place went to the herd of William Krause, route 1, Hortonville, which showed an average of 42.1 pounds. The John Frank, route 2, Black Creek, herd was fourth with 41.4 pounds, and the Robert Murphy, route 2, West DePere, herd fifth with a 40.9-pound average.

A cow in the Paltzer herd copped the high individual honor with 2,030 pounds of milk containing 95.4 pounds of butterfat. A cow in the Paul Kroes herd was second with 80.4 pounds of fat. Third was a cow in the Henry Smith herd with 69 pounds. Fourth and fifth places were taken by cows in the Kroes herd with 68.6 and 68.5 pounds, respectively.

Following are owners and number of cows producing 40 or more pounds of butterfat during the month: John Van Asten 4, John Coenen 5, Paul Kroes 10, Chester Appleton 1, Ray Newhouse 3, Walter Romensko 2, Clem Vandenberg 3, William Krause 11, Ed Vogt 2, Aaron Lammner 3, Mike Mack 3, Maurice Power 7, Henry Smith 6, Robert Paltzer 12, Frank Bacheller 11, Irvin Bacheller 1, Gus Raiman 1, Bert Zobel 3, Alfred Techlin 12, Patrick Garvey 18, Henry Oudenhoven 5, Robert Murphy 11, Albert Loos 8, Ray Staevan 3 and John Frank 8.

graciously, to the obvious delight of the crowd.

Queen Elizabeth, who had been the first to disembark, wore a pale blue dress with a cape, a pale blue hat turned up at one side, and carried a bouquet of orchids.

On the ride uptown the royal couple saw on the left the teeming piers, huge warehouses and harbor bustle, on the right a row upon row of typical water-front cafes and sailor's shops and hangouts.

The royal couple rode on the downtown or left side of the highway, which was cleared of all other traffic. The up-town side was packed with thousands upon thousands of men women and children who had obtained tickets to this area.

More than 80,000 tickets were given out at city hall, and those who obtained them were permitted to retain the stubs as souvenirs.

Hundreds of thousands of school children were given advance points along the tree-lined drives and there the king and queen caught a glimpse of one of the town's most impressive sights—the row of exclusive hotels which line Central park south.

NEW JERSEY GREETING

Red Bank, N. J.—(AP)—In a typically American small town setting, New Jersey saluted England's king and queen today in this one-time colony of the British crown.

Leaving their royal blue and silver train at the little flag-draped station in the town center at 7:03 a. m. (C. S. T.) George VI and Queen Elizabeth received friendly handclaps, official greetings and the cheers of massed thousands.

As they stood on the red-brick platform, out of sight of most of the spectators, the British sovereigns were welcomed by Mayor Charles R. English on behalf of the town's 12,000 population and by Governor Edward J. Hughes on behalf of the state of 4,000,000 which grew from territory deeded in 1684 to the duke of York—also the title of George VI before his ascension to the throne.

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL

Washington.—(AP)—A spontaneous midnight farewell from thousands of cheering Washingtonians sent King George and Queen Elizabeth on to New York today for fresh acclaim in the nation's metropolis.

People began jamming the cavernous station and its plaza early in the evening, while the king and queen were tiding the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at a ceremonial banquet at the British embassy.

When the royal party finally arrived at 11:30 p. m., the throng was deep deep behind rope barricades.

Public excitement during the royal visit reached their climax today afternoon, when the king placed wreaths on the tombs of George Washington and America's unknown soldier, and at the Canadian cross in honor of Americans who died fighting in the Canadian forces.

The dinner by which the king and queen repaid the Roosevelt White House hospitality was the smallest but also one of the most pretentious social events during their stay.

Finance Officers to Have Madison School

A school for municipal finance officers will be held at Madison Monday under the sponsorship of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities. Joseph A. Koz, city treasurer, or Carl J. Becker, city clerk, probably will attend the meeting.

KING GEORGE PAYS HOMAGE AT WASHINGTON'S TOMB

This was the historic scene at Mount Vernon, Va., as, in solemn reverence, King George VI paid homage to America's foremost shrine, the tomb of George Washington, who led thirteen struggling colonies to independence from British rule. The king, hat in hand, had just placed a wreath on the tomb (right) when this picture was made. At left, Queen Elizabeth, in white, made a pointed inquiry of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in figured dress and holding purse. President Roosevelt, on the arm of Edwin Watson, presidential secretary, was just to right and behind the king.

Admits Intending To Place Wife in Disorderly House

Florida Man Given 3-Year Sentence for Mann Act Violation

Milwaukee.—(AP)—Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone yesterday sentenced William A. Garriga, 37, of Port McCoy, Fla., to three years in a federal penitentiary when he pleaded guilty to Mann act violation.

Garriga admitted he had taken his wife, a former University of Mississippi coed, from Kankakee, Ill., to Racine with the idea of placing her in a Kenosha disorderly house.

Calling Garriga's conduct "filthy," Judge Stone also sentenced him to two years on the slavery count, to run concurrently with the slavery charge.

Lawrence Harrington, 40, a former WPA timekeeper at Milwaukee, pleaded guilty to falsifying time sheets for the benefit of a score of WPA truckers. He was accused of obtaining $150 out of the $900 which his act cost the government. Sentence of a year and a day in a federal penitentiary was suspended and Harrington was placed on probation for 18 months.

Pleads Guilty

Sam Tervich, 45, Summit, Ill., pleaded guilty to sending a threatening letter to Dr. Oscar S. Tenley of Wabeno, Wis., and was placed on probation for a year. Tervich, who wrote the doctor concerning Mrs. Tervich's death and demanded a "refund" of medical and funeral expenses.

Fred E. Martin of Spread Eagle, Wis., was sentenced to spend an hour in the custody of the United States marshal after admitting he picked up a girl hitchhiker at her at a disorderly house at Escanaba, Mich. He was sentenced to two months in jail awaiting grand jury action. The court was informed he apparently had no part in getting the girl employment in Escanaba.

HEARING

Fading hearing means gradual separation from the world of sound. As the gap widens, the effort to overcome embarrassment and to retain friendships and social contacts increases nervous strain and tension. But, the new and startling invention that so many people are talking about, the new SONOTONE AUDICLE, helps to bridge the gap. It does much that older models could not do. SONOTONE AUDICLES are priced as low as sixty-five dollars. Easy terms if desired. No charge for a hearing test. Come in.

League Battling Proposal to Limit Local Tax Levies

Appleton Would Lose 28 Per Cent of Real Estate Revenue

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison.—The League of Wisconsin municipalities, consisting of officials of several hundred Wisconsin cities, towns and villages, is engaged in a strenuous tug-of-war with the Republican administration over the issue of real estate tax limitation.

The Northman real estate tax limit proposal, which has the backing of the Hell administration, proposes to freeze local tax levies to the 1936 level, or the average of the levies between 1933 and 1936, either of which will bring taxes about 10 per cent below the 1936 level for the state.

Claiming that the state itself, through its shirking of duty and responsibility and the application of extra expenses on local govern-

WHAT CITIES WOULD LOSE

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison.—The League of Wisconsin municipalities today offered a table of statistics which it said would show the drastic effect on local finances of the Northman tax limitation bill.

If taxes were limited in the future to the 1936 level, the headquarters office of the municipal organization said, Green Bay would lose 25 per cent of its present real estate tax revenues, Appleton would suffer to the extent of 26 per cent, DePere would drop 31 per cent, Neenah 17 per cent and Menasha 25 per cent.

The city of Kaukauna, because of the substantial rise in its assessment since 1936, would suffer a 59 per cent loss, it was said.

Other cities, however, might gain, it was pointed out, because a few have reduced taxes in the last few years. New London, for example, would be able to raise its levy 16 per cent despite the limitation.

ments, has made it impossible to think local taxes to such a degree, League officials said today that the effort by the state at this time is "in effect saying to the people of the state: . . ."

"We have been unable to reduce state expenses and in fact have increased them materially, but in order to make an economy showing we will now proceed to put local units of government in a straight-jacket despite the fact that these local governments have already drastically reduced local expenditures."

Bill Called Unfair

The League maintains that the limitation bill—originally suggested by Hell as a companion to a state sales tax but now apparently being pushed independently—is unfair, impractical, impossible, and hypocritical, because:

1. The state government has evaded its rightful responsibility for financing social security and relief.

2. A much larger share of school costs has been paid from general property taxes in Wisconsin than in other states.

3. The innumerable mandatory local expenses imposed by the legislature have caused the high property taxes.

4. The state has taken away revenues from local governments, thus increasing property tax rates.

5. The state should not follow a policy of "economy for you but not for me."

6. Tax limitation can only be accomplished if some revenue is replaced from some other source, or if local expenses are reduced through legislative repeal of numerous special requirements on local treasuries.

According to the League the local governments of Wisconsin since 1930 have reduced their normal expenses by 29 per cent, while the state government has increased its normal expenditures by 25 per cent. Therefore, the limitation bill localities economize is manifestly unfair if the state's costs continue to increase, according to mayoral spokesmen for the League organization.

Win Heavy Support

Prospects today, however, were considered dark for the League. Proponents of the tax limitation proposal who appeared at the hearings are almost exclusively Milwaukee real estate operators. They confidently talked of the bill as an "administration" measure. In fact, the subject of high property taxes frequently figures in Governor Hell's speeches, and the numerous petitions—76,000 names had been filed up to today—in favor of the Northman bill have won a heavy support for it in the legislature.

The contention of the bill's sponsors is that Wisconsin property taxes are reaching the confiscatory level, as shown by the huge total of delinquencies. The incentive for home ownership, said the Milwaukee real estate operators, is being destroyed.

League officers, however, contend that an arbitrary limitation on all local governments would produce chaos in local government in Wisconsin. In some communities a limitation to the 1936 level, because of the heavy subsequent relief burden and other reasons would deprive the local officers of up to 50 per cent of their present budgets.

The growth of relief and social security demands, it was argued, are almost solely responsible for the recent rise in property taxes. If the state government would absorb these costs, and allow the local governments actual home-requirements for all kinds of municipal services, tax limitation would be accomplished without legislative compulsion, the League officials promised.

Intake at Borden Plant Hits Peak

About 250,000 Pounds of Milk Received Daily This Week

New London — The annual peak of milk production at the Borden Milk Products condensary was reached this week with an intake of approximately 250,000 pounds daily, according to G. A. Wells, superintendent. Receipts are about the same as last year.

An unusual trend at this season's flush period is a slight increase in prices during a time when prices generally drop. The change, Mr. Wells explained, is attributed to the announcement of the federal government the latter part of May that it will purchase another 25 million pounds of butter for surplus use. Another important reason is the increased amount of butter being distributed in the east in a new governmental stamp plan for issuing aid to relief clients.

Payment of milk at the plant was made during May at the rate of approximately 34 cents per pound of butterfat, representing an increase of nearly a cent a pound over April though the price in May, 1938, was 34 cents.

A new milk irradiator was installed at the New London plant this week to give the condensed milk its patented "sunshine" treatment. The $4,000 machine is small in size but with a capacity equal to the older machines which it will replace.

Royal Visitors Absorb Life of Nation's Capital

British Press Expresses Pleased Surprise at Cordiality of Welcome

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Historians of the future may appraise its significance, but there can be no question of the fact that the king and queen of Great Britain have absorbed the life of the national capital this week.

Well may the British press express its pleased surprise at the cordiality of the welcome, for it is, indeed, a surprise to many who have lived here long and have witnessed the comings and goings of royalty.

Back in 1917, in the tense days of war, when the famous Marshal Joffre came to Washington and when the celebrities from abroad were greeted by street demonstrations, there was no such warmth and no such deep-seated enthusiasm as have greeted the king and queen of England.

Something in the manner of their majesties, something in the graciousness of their voices, their refinement and their poise caught the hearts of America's officialdom in this national capital where distinguished personalities are no novelty at all.

But, if the official personnel of the government, irrespective of party or group, radicals and conservatives alike, showed their sincere admiration for the royal couple, even more demonstrative were the people who lined the streets.

Something Unexplained
There is something unexplained perhaps in this manifestation of international friendship. Days upon days, the public has read of the approaching visit and has seen pictures of the king and queen, but the actual sight of the two exponents of the British tradition seemed to have brought its own stimulus.

The whole visit has been a marvel of careful arrangement and preparation. Those who think that a democratic government is uncouth and doesn't know the quiet ways of dignified reception never made a greater mistake. In every sense, there was occasion for pride in the splendidly courteous and equally cordial way in which the president and Mrs. Roosevelt received their guests and in the touch of informality with which the visitors accepted the American disdain for the pomp of official formality.

Nor was this sincerity of friendship manifested alone by the presdent. At the garden party in the British embassy grounds, one saw Vice President Garner greeting the king and a moment later, his right hand placed informally on the king's shoulder as the two engaged in animated conversation. It seemed like a meeting of old friends. As for the international effect, it doubtless will grow when the full reports reach Europe from the correspondents who came along from London. The fact that the president discussed with the king the world situation, war and peace and its implications for us all, was disclosed in an informal press conference by Mr. Roosevelt himself. It could not possibly be a formal or official discussion because the king cannot speak for the British government—only the prime minister of foreign secretary can do that. But what could be of more interest to the people of Great Britain and of the various British dominions and colonies than to learn of the presence at all of this topic on the agenda of a social visit?

Exchange Ideas
Nothing was revealed as to this conversation except that it was an exchange of ideas, and perhaps hopes for peace, such as would be the case if any two distinguished representatives of America and Britain were to meet at dinner anywhere in the world.

The president's formal toast was, of course, a carefully thought-out message, designed to aid the cause of democracy the world over by drawing attention to the spiritual union which exists between two peace-loving peoples. The press of Germany and Italy may speak derisively of these things; indeed, the very attitude of the controlled press of the dictator countries shows that any drawing together of America and Britain is not liked abroad. But it may be recorded that, if a mere social visit with its far-reaching implications that war embarked upon by them might conclude in the same way as it did in 1918, then perhaps the quiet-mannered man and his gracious lady did accomplish for their own people and the peoples of the world something tangibly worth while in the cause of peace.

Prahl's News	0	3

New London — The Knights of Columbus took a 5 to 1 beating from Gambles in a pitching duel between Charles Nader, just returned home from school at La Crosse, and Robert Ullerich, Gamble hurler, in an Industrial league softball game at the Washington High school grounds last night.

The winners collected their runs off seven hits, bunched in three, while the K. C. only got three scattered safeties though they connected for a lot of flies.

Monday evening the youngsters of Prahl's News will tackle the undefeated Bordens.

Youth Will Solve Problems of U. S., Students Predict

105 Kaukauna High School Seniors are Given Diplomas

Kaukauna — Student speakers explained the high school curriculum as a foundation for modern life, and prophesied that youth would solve America's problems as 105 Kaukauna high school graduates received diplomas at commencement exercises last night.

The youth of America will find their place in our economic system, James F. Cavanaugh, superintendent of schools, said in a brief address.

"Today youth thinks more keenly than ever before — they are no longer fooled by specious reasoning and sophistry. Today they are no longer satisfied with promises, but they are loyal to the principles of representative democracy, and will carry on that form of government."

Ena Richards, valedictorian, traced the part played by youth in the making of America, many times against the opposition of their elders.

"The attitude of many toward youth today is the same as in pioneer times," Miss Richards said. "But youth has solved the problems of the past and will solve those of the future. Today we have one great problem, poverty in the midst of plenty. The country's youth is its greatest asset, and holds in their hands the destiny of our democracy."

Thirteen seniors explained the value of mathematics, English, agriculture and home economics in the high school program. They were Arlene Van Gompel, Patricia Mayer, Pearl Lopez, Paul H. Akers, Clifford Kalista, Peter Ling, Mary Jane Garrity, Germaine DeBruin, Karl Kobussen, Arlene Schomisch, Louise Mary Faust, Ilene Rose Henningsen and Rita M. Taggart.

The commencement theme will be continued in 1940, with members of that class speaking on other subjects.

Robert Baker, introducing the speakers, listed four aims of high school education.

"We prepare to earn our living, to learn a vocation; we learn how to use our leisure time; we absorb appreciation for democracy and a high regard for democratic ideals, and develop an acceptable philosophy of life."

Urges Middle Course

Three viewpoints are held of our educational system, Baker said. Some think our schools should take the initiative in changing our social and economic order, and others that they should strive to preserve the status quo. The middle course, aiming to give youth an able and alert mind to fit in with a constantly changing society, is the correct viewpoint.

Rosemary O'Neil in her salutatory address welcomed the parents and friends in attendance as affording an opportunity for the seniors to give them a better view of advantages and benefits of a high school course.

The high school band, directed by Clarence Kriesa, played for the procession, and concluded the exercises with "The Star Spangled Banner." The girls' glee club sang "Night Song," by Clokey, and "I Love Life," by Manna Zucca, with the mixed chorus rendering "Turtle Dove," by Vaughn Williams, and "The Last Chorus," by Sullivan. Miss Leilie Austin directed both groups.

Earl O'Connor played a flute solo, "Warrior's Last Waltz," and Robert Smith, a clarinet solo. John D. Burns, class president, gave the address of welcome.

Kaukauna — The Mankosky Coals joined the Kappell Tavern team at the top of the City softball league last night, taking a forfeit defeat from Ritz Tavern. The latter team failed to put 8 men on the field by the required time.

The CYO team, defeated 4 to 2 Thursday evening by the Kaukauna Klub, protested the game, and their objection was allowed by a vote of the league managers. The game will be replayed.

In Thursday's game Sherman Powers lined a double to left field. The return throw went through the CYO infield and Powers continued around third to score. The CYO players argued he must stop at third. The managers looked in the rule book last night found that on a play at second base a runner may take all the bases he can get, but ordered the game played over. All the teams would rather beat the Klubs, city champs, than each other.

A practice game between the Coals and Ritz Tavern was run off, with the Coals taking a 9 to 8 victory. Leading 9 to 1 at the start of the last inning, the Taverns came back with five hits and a walk, which combined with three enemy errors, gave them 7 runs. Art Grissman pitched for the losers, with Bill Kuchelmeister and Toby Kiffe on the mound for the winners.

Royal Visit Is Interval as America Faces Real Problems

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—This excursion into royal pageantry lasts 'till a moment and then the repair men of democracy will have to turn back from this dreamland of Gilbert and Sullivan played deadpan, and face again the reality of trying to provide our people with work, food and shelter out of the riches in which we abound.

Indeed, even as their majesties were settling themselves in their White House quarters, the congress went dolefully back to its job, the house to consider extension of social security and the senate to vote on a slum clearance bill.

This king and queen are here only as gentle, sentimental relics preserved from the vanished age of monarchs which disappeared when people found that kings were unable to provide them with tolerable freedom and conditions of life.

Will democracy live to tell the tale unless it is able to provide these conditions? With courage and intelligence it can do the job. It has found the way to provide the freedom. It has yet to find the satisfactory conditions of life. In Rochester, N. Y., and Dayton, O., the government is experimenting to find out how it can give away surplus food, which goes unsold, to one-fifth of those populations, persons who are on relief because they cannot find work.

I think New Dealers have failed to convince the right people of the gravity of the problem. It was easy to convince those who were out of work. But the New Deal has not convinced the large group which occupies positions of economic power, large and small and whose cooperation is necessary. If it had, there would not be so much resistance.

The United States Chamber of Commerce would not adopt resolutions for repeal of the wages and hour act, and packers, cannery and food processors would not be busy at this moment trying to cut the heart out of the wages and hours act and remove its protection from thousands of helpless people on the borderline of existence.

New Dealers have been poor salesmen. They burrow in economic literature and dress their speeches in statistics and technical jargon that none but themselves can understand. Dealing with an intensely human problem, they cannot, in their discussion of it, bring it to life as real flesh and blood. Mr. Roosevelt almost alone among them has the gift to do that.

Novel by Steinbeck Describes Situation

As if they secretly recognized their failure, New Dealers are reading and talking up the new best selling novel by John Steinbeck, "The Grapes of Wrath," finding that it gets across the message which they have been unable to carry to the right people. This is the poignant odyssey of the new pioneers, driven off their farms by dust storms, foreclosure and large scale tractor farming, hitting the trail as did the early pioneers, looking for work and new opportunity further west. Here human beings come to life on the printed page because they were copied down from life as the author lived among them gathering his material.

Unlike the first pioneers, these modern pioneers arrive at the rainbow's end to find, not virgin wilderness waiting to yield up its riches to those willing to dig them out. No. They find the country already built up, everything taken, deputy sheriffs with guns to keep them out, browbeat them, contractors to work them at pitiful pay for a few weeks during fruit picking time, after which they are driven out of the country. This novel tells the story of thousands and thousands of depression victims and the foreboding implications.

But it is not a story for New Dealers, who know it already, but for those successful people who own things and have good jobs and good businesses, who sit around on country club verandas over mint juleps and damn that man Roosevelt—those people who, says author Steinbeck, "Strike at the immediate thing, the widening government, the growing labor unity, at new taxes, at plans; not knowing these things are results, not causes . . . causes which lie deep . . . hunger in the stomach, multiplied a million times . . . hunger for joy and some security, multiplied a million times."

Novelist Steinbeck goes on to address these more fortunate people. "If you who own the things people must have could understand this, you might preserve yourself. If you could separate causes from results, if you could know that Paine, Marx, Jefferson, Lenin were results, not causes, you might survive."

This message will not interest British royalty because power already has been taken out of the royal hands. But it might interest economic royalty so that it may profit by the examples that have gone before in history.

Brews Will Seek Win Over Neenah

Kaukauna Team Must Take Game to Stay in First Half Race

Kaukauna — Realizing that a defeat in all probability ends their chances for the first half title when Mellow Brews of the Fox River Valley league move on Neenah tomorrow determined to return with their fifth league win. The Brews, with a 4 and 1 record, are a game out of the lead, trailing the Kimberly nine which has taken 5 games in a row.

A week from Sunday the Kaws play at Kimberly, a game which will decide the title if Neenah is downed. Appleton comes here June 25 for the final game of the first half. The Kimberly tilt may be changed to a night game, as the water carnival is slated for Sunday afternoon.

Pebbs Kappell will be in Gib Buses's place in the outfield when the Brews meet Neenah. Buses is ill at home. Eddie Schuler will be seeking his fourth league win against one defeat, a 6 to 3 decision to Little Chute last week.

With but four runs in their last two games the Brews are in a battling slump. The team average is .301, due mainly to a Roman holiday against Oshkosh. Manager Joey Vilis hopes the boys snap out of it for the last crucial contest in the first half.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their poppers were not delivered.

VANDENBERG AT SYRACUSE

At Syracuse University Senator Vandenberg, one of the leading candidates for the Republican nomination for president, discussed national problems in that same manner that might be expected of any leading liberal, provided the word is not corkscrewed out of shape.

Vandenberg recognized that many New Deal reforms should have been created for national security long ago. He selected to sear with his burning rhetoric those laws that have been passed and those attitudes that have been assumed by the administration which have certainly obstructed "free enterprise" from standing up and functioning in the normal way it has for generations in this country.

The country should be made acquainted with the fact that Senator Vandenberg is not a straddler nor a middle-courser. This has been his consistent attitude all through the Roosevelt administration.

He has always criticized the administration when its conduct paralleled that of one who kicks another just to show what a mean guy he is and even though the kick be painful in the extreme to many innocent persons.

Senator Vandenberg realizes that free enterprise in this country is approaching a coma. And the people should grasp from conceded conditions that the country's commercial and industrial lethargy and the consequent paralysis that is evident in every direction have resulted from the irrational acts of the administration, its failure to abruptly stop after it had corrected a wrong and its childish attempt to build one man up into a gigantic wooden figure of some Hindenberg.

Judged from his spoken words, reinforced by a stainless record, Mr. Vandenberg's declarations will be accepted as liberalism. Nothing has ever occurred in his public life to justify the thought that he is merely talking for effect or that his word is as worthless as a confederate bond.

A PROPHECY OF 1934

"Before long the American people will have learned some economic lessons of which they were almost entirely ignorant in 1932."

"President Roosevelt and his national recovery planners are the chasers. But they are teachers extraordinary. They themselves do not know what the end of the lesson will be."

"Before the next election the United States should have learned several things, and the significance of those things should not be lost for a generation or more."

"One is that the unpopular law of supply and demand is a better controller of industries, wages and prices than is General Johnson or any other picturesque 'czar' that the NRA can place behind a mahogany desk in Washington."

"Another is that the goal of restriction is a false god."

"A third, that trade, trade, trade, is the way to prosperity."

"Sooner or later the American people, having still many shrewd and independent leaders amongst them, will listen to voices that at present are drowned by the scream of the Blue Eagle."

"Before the next election the American people will raise a great cry of protest against the elaborate government action that has lost them their foreign markets through a theory that democratic prosperity has no need of foreign trade."

"They will have seen curtailment after curtailment in agricultural production and surpluses will still pile up, for the federal government will still deny the law of supply and demand, and production from intensive cultivation of the best acreage will be stimulated by bonuses and compensation on the removal of poorer land from cultivation."

"Control will succeed control until a vast and expensive bureaucracy of controllers will be built up, but there will be, strangely enough, less and less control. The natural control by law of supply and demand can be only temporarily suspended."

"Out of this chaotic condition, which will threaten to set the United States down to the position of a third-class nation, will come a very natural revolution against the whole scheme of government interference in business."

The foregoing is part of an editorial from a Vancouver, B. C. newspaper printed in 1934 and is quoted because it is so aptly worded. Yet there is nothing particularly strange about it nor is there anything in it greatly dissimilar to repeated warnings issued in the press.

On numerous occasions practically all reliable sources prophesied that if Mr. Roosevelt could only be kept in office long enough for the people to learn the lesson and get into their eyes an outline of the hideous creature he was creating there would be no need of further preachings during the life of this generation. And yet "memory is so short." Even those who were adults and became intimately familiar with the most tremendous blunder in America's history, its participation in the World war, are drinking from the same old bottle as though curious to see whether it will have the same effect.

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE

To have completed 50 years of active service in any field is accomplishment enough for most men. To have filled these 50 years with service to man and his Creator is, however, a privilege accorded few of us. This is the privilege granted to the Rev. Theodore Marth, ordained as a Lutheran minister a half century ago, and pastor of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran church of Appleton for most of that time.

It is significant that the Rev. Mr. Marth should have chosen the United States as the nation in which to carry out his work, for, had he remained in his native Germany, the freedom of religious thought and expression we take for granted here would not be available today.

The Post-Crescent, on whose staff are members of practically all faiths, congratulates the Rev. Mr. Marth on his accomplishment. He has guided his congregation well, carrying many of its members to maturity, middle age and beyond.

All of Appleton, as well as the Zion Evangelical congregation, has reason to congratulate him on this occasion, for his leadership of so important a religious body for so many years has had a definite influence on the entire city.

TECHNICALITIES IN WISCONSIN TRIALS

The case against Herman Salen, former district attorney of Waukesha county, who stands accused on a grand jury indictment of perjury alleged to have taken place when an investigation was being made into slot machines and other similar conditions, presents very well the attitude in which one might say the laws of Wisconsin have been molded in order to become effective against crime.

Mr. Salen, when brought to trial, objected to the right of the people to proceed against him on the ground that the indictment was worthless in that the jury commissioners had excluded women from the grand jury. Our supreme court has just held that while it was error for the commissioners to omit women from the lists under our present laws, the error was not of substance in respect to Mr. Salen's rights but was an irregularity that did him no harm.

Whether Mr. Salen committed perjury when sworn as a witness in the vice investigation is the matter which the people are presently trying to ascertain. It would be just as sensible to say that he could not be tried for that alleged crime because women were excluded from the grand jury as to make the same ruling in case there was no one on the jury between 30 and 36 years of age.

But back of the ruling of the supreme court are some very sensible laws passed by former Wisconsin legislatures to the general effect that warrants, indictments, complaints and the like shall not be discarded because of inconsequential mistakes so long as the substantial rights of the accused are protected; and while such laws must be stated in general terms and their application left to the court, the wholesome result created is seen as a combination of purposeful legislation and a court determined to prevent a trial from turning into a mere game of checkers and glad to cut the froth to that "irreducible minimum."

PICKING ON THE IRISH

We should all ordinarily commend the federal authorities for locking up Sean Russell, alleged Irish revolutionist, because of the expectation that his purpose was to cause a fracas upon royalty's arrival in this country or do a little boozing or possibly throw a firecracker. But we do not live in ordinary times nor under ordinary circumstances. And it was therefore downright injustice for the federal authorities to interfere with anyone whose only purpose was to bring another European quarrel to these shores.

Shall we permit immigrants from Italy, Germany and Russia, and the cracked-headed from everywhere, to stage their rumpuses in some American arena and deny the Irish? Can't the Irish put on as good a brawl as anyone? Hibernia's sons and daughters all over this broad land should be shaking in rage at this contumacious belittlement of the Ould Sod.

Babylon's great place in ancient history as the meeting spot of all tongues will pale into insignificance if no obstructions at all are placed upon the American ambition to bring hither every pugacious wrangler, every cauliflowered street fighter and cobbler stone thrower, whatever his nationality, and let him stage anything from a scuffle to a joust and on to a vehement dog fight.

Thermal belts are so sharply defined around Tyron, N. C. that often crops prosper in one spot and languish only a few feet away.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—In a moment of pique last summer I wrote a piece to this effect: We New Yorkers do not want our country cousins to plan on visiting the Fair as our guests. I tried to point out that we loved our cousins but that New York apartment houses are not constructed with any facilities for having overnight visitors.

To hand now has come a reply from a Texas lady who, for the purposes of literature, signs herself as the wife of the allegorical "Cousin Newt" to whom I wrote last June. It tells the country cousin's side of it. With some ellipses and omissions, here it is:

Dear Cousin Dale: I would have answered your letter to Newt earlier, but it arrived last June 18 just at the beginning of the summer influx of relatives from the city who were coming out to spend their annual vacations with us. First there was Aunt Martha. She had plenty at one time and we didn't hear from her for years because she always went to Atlantic City, Florida, or even abroad for the summers. But she had reversed and now that she is getting old and feeble she does enjoy coming to our quiet little town to spend a few pleasant weeks! She arrived right in the middle of the canning season, and how she did enjoy watching us do it.

Before she left, Mary (cousin Ted's wife) came with her three boys—7, 5 and 2. I'm asking you, Cousin Dale, are all kids in the city like hers? When she left, we worked a week cleaning house. By then we were putting up our winter supply of preserves and jellies. One day a big car drove up and who should it be but Cousin John, his wife, daughter and son-in-law. You remember John made lots of money in cotton one year and they moved to Chicago. They were just taking a leisurely trip through the South and remembered we were only 100 miles from Dallas, so they came that far out of their way to see us. They stayed ten days. You know he was always so fond of fried chicken. Our chicken population was decimated. Also that winter supply of jelly went down.

Two days after they left I had a letter from Cousin Lucy saying her son from Yale was coming down to spend a few days. He had heard his parents tell about the good eats we had and wanted to see for himself. Although I was now on the verge of a nervous breakdown, southern hospitality and common politeness would not allow me to write him not to come or to go to the hotel (you would have done one or the other even if you had not had company all summer, wouldn't you, Cousin Dale?) He came. He suggested we invite all the relatives to my house one day for dinner so he wouldn't have to call on each separately. He also wanted me to send a fried chicken to a friend of his in the city because the friend's mother was so busy she never had time to fry him one. This young "city cousin" slept most of the day and borrowed the family car with gas in it to look for amusement in nearby towns at night. He stayed a week.

It was now late summer and I had three children to get ready for school. After feeding so many extra mouths all summer, paying the long-distance telephone calls and cleaning and pressing bills our city cousins left behind, our purse couldn't stand the little trip to the coast we had planned.

Since you New Yorkers care so little for the opportunities right at your door (as you said), I do hope some of the other cousins in America will be able to put up at the hotels as you asked—that is if they can get off from home before their city cousins start camping at their houses for the summer. With sympathy and love. (Signed) Newt's wife.

MY YESTERDAY

One of my favorite kind of days—rain driving down at an artistic angle, with lightning romping in the sky. I knew an old man when I was a boy who loved lightning. During every storm he would stand on his front porch and watch its frolics and listen as the thunder clapped enthusiastic applause. For years this went on. But one day as he stood on the porch the lightning saw him. Anyway, he was an old man, and it was an easy way to die.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Saturday, June 13, 1914
Dr. A. W. Kanouse, William Wilson, the Rev. F. Diete, William Buchanan, Dennis Meidam, J. J. Diener and David Ryan had returned from the G.A.A. convention at Madison.

Over $80,000 had been collected for the chair of Missions and Comparative Religions at Lawrence college.

County Clerk William F. Wolf was to attend the state convention of county clerks at LaCrosse Tuesday.

Announcement had been made of the marriage of James Monaghan, paying teller at the First National bank, to Miss Rose Rayome, Iron Mountain. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride the previous Monday. The couple was to reside on Appleton street.

A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, arrived in Appleton that day from his home in Cicero. He was obliged to remain home four days because of the high water in Black Creek which prevented him from reaching Black Creek or Seymour. He said the water was two feet over the road north of Black Creek.

10 YEARS AGO

Saturday, June 8, 1929
Two more sites were offered for consideration as possible locations for the proposed new post office. The H. W. Meyer estate at the southwest corner of N. Morrison and E. Franklin streets was offered by J. W. Meyer and Carl Seeger at $45,000 and the site at Superior and Washington streets was offered by J. E. Amend at $90,000. Twelve other sites were being investigated.

Fire Friday afternoon swept the west wing of Rusk hall, one of the oldest buildings at the Wisconsin Veterans' home near Waupaca, causing damage estimated by Carl Salzman, acting superintendent, at $53,000.

The cornerstone of the new $60,000 Zion parish school was to be laid at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. The Rev. Theodore Marth was to place the stone and speeches were to be given by the Rev. H. J. Brede, Caroline, and the Rev. Frederick Troch, Cicero.

ETERNAL TRUTH

Some of the facts I conquered with my mind in years gone by, have been disproved today; men are always learning, and they find with the advance of Science, a new way.

A Bystander In Washington

BY FRESTON GROVER

Washington—The latest legislation intended to hit the jackpot of hoarded savings and broadcast them into the channels of hungry business is the Mead Bill providing insured bank loans for small industries.

Grover

sure 80 to 90 per cent of loans made by banks and loan companies for house building.

In its preliminary hearings before a Senate banking committee it already is found to contain the usual grist of difficulties. Nevertheless there is better than a fair prospect that they will be met with revisions in time to permit the bill to get through this session. Part of the support for the bill is from banking groups who would oppose it except for the fact it is less obnoxious to them than other credit measures that have been booted around the capital.

One such rival proposal is a bill to set up an intermediate credit bank akin to the Government-sponsored agency now lending money to farmers. This would operate independently of the private banking system and the Federal Reserve System. It thereby runs into opposition not only from private bankers but also from the powerful reserve system under eagle-eyed Eccles.

75,000 "Small" Businesses
Even the bitterest opponents of the legislation concede that small business enterprises have trouble just now to get money at low interest rates for reasonably long periods. Of 200,000 corporations in the country, approximately 175,000 are in the "small business" class with net earnings under $25,000 annually.

Senator Adams of Colorado, bitterly critical of the bill, says there would be no need of the legislation if business men could look with any confidence into a future free of excessive governmental tinkering and blundering. That is approximately the core of the opposition.

Supporters of the legislation include Senator Wagner of New York, Jerome Frank, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the author, Senator Mead. These look upon it as a means of helping banks to go in for smaller industrial loans, the billions of capital now lying in the coffers. The biggest loan allowed would be one million.

The bill provides that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will guarantee the bank against loss on 90 per cent of a loan to a promising small business.

The bank runs its own risk on only ten per cent. Interest would be limited to four per cent unless the bill invited a runaway borrowing spree. Four per cent is decidedly below what most such industries now have to pay. Owners of several small concerns have testified that they have had to pay private lenders 18 to 20 per cent for money to expand their plants.

Big Profits Necessary
Such rates narrow the chances of making a go of it because they have to make such a working profit to meet. Contingencies are conservative and safer game if they could get the money for four per cent, plus loan insurance of one per cent. That, basically, is the argument for the bill, supplemented by the hope that it might start a business revival (perhaps before next election time).

Senator Adams said the bill had no two limits and if really let loose might tie the Government up to millions in loans on everything from boom factories to airplane plants. Another weakness pointed out to the committee was failure of the bill to take into consideration local interest rates. To start a line of four or five per cent credit down South where eight per cent and up is reputedly the custom could cause tremendous industrial disturbance.

But do you think you could get Alabama to pay six per cent while New Yorkers were getting this same "government money" at four per cent?

Solving difficulties like that is what senators are made for.

No need of such legislation admit that. But do you think you could get Alabama to pay six per cent while New Yorkers were getting this same "government money" at four per cent?

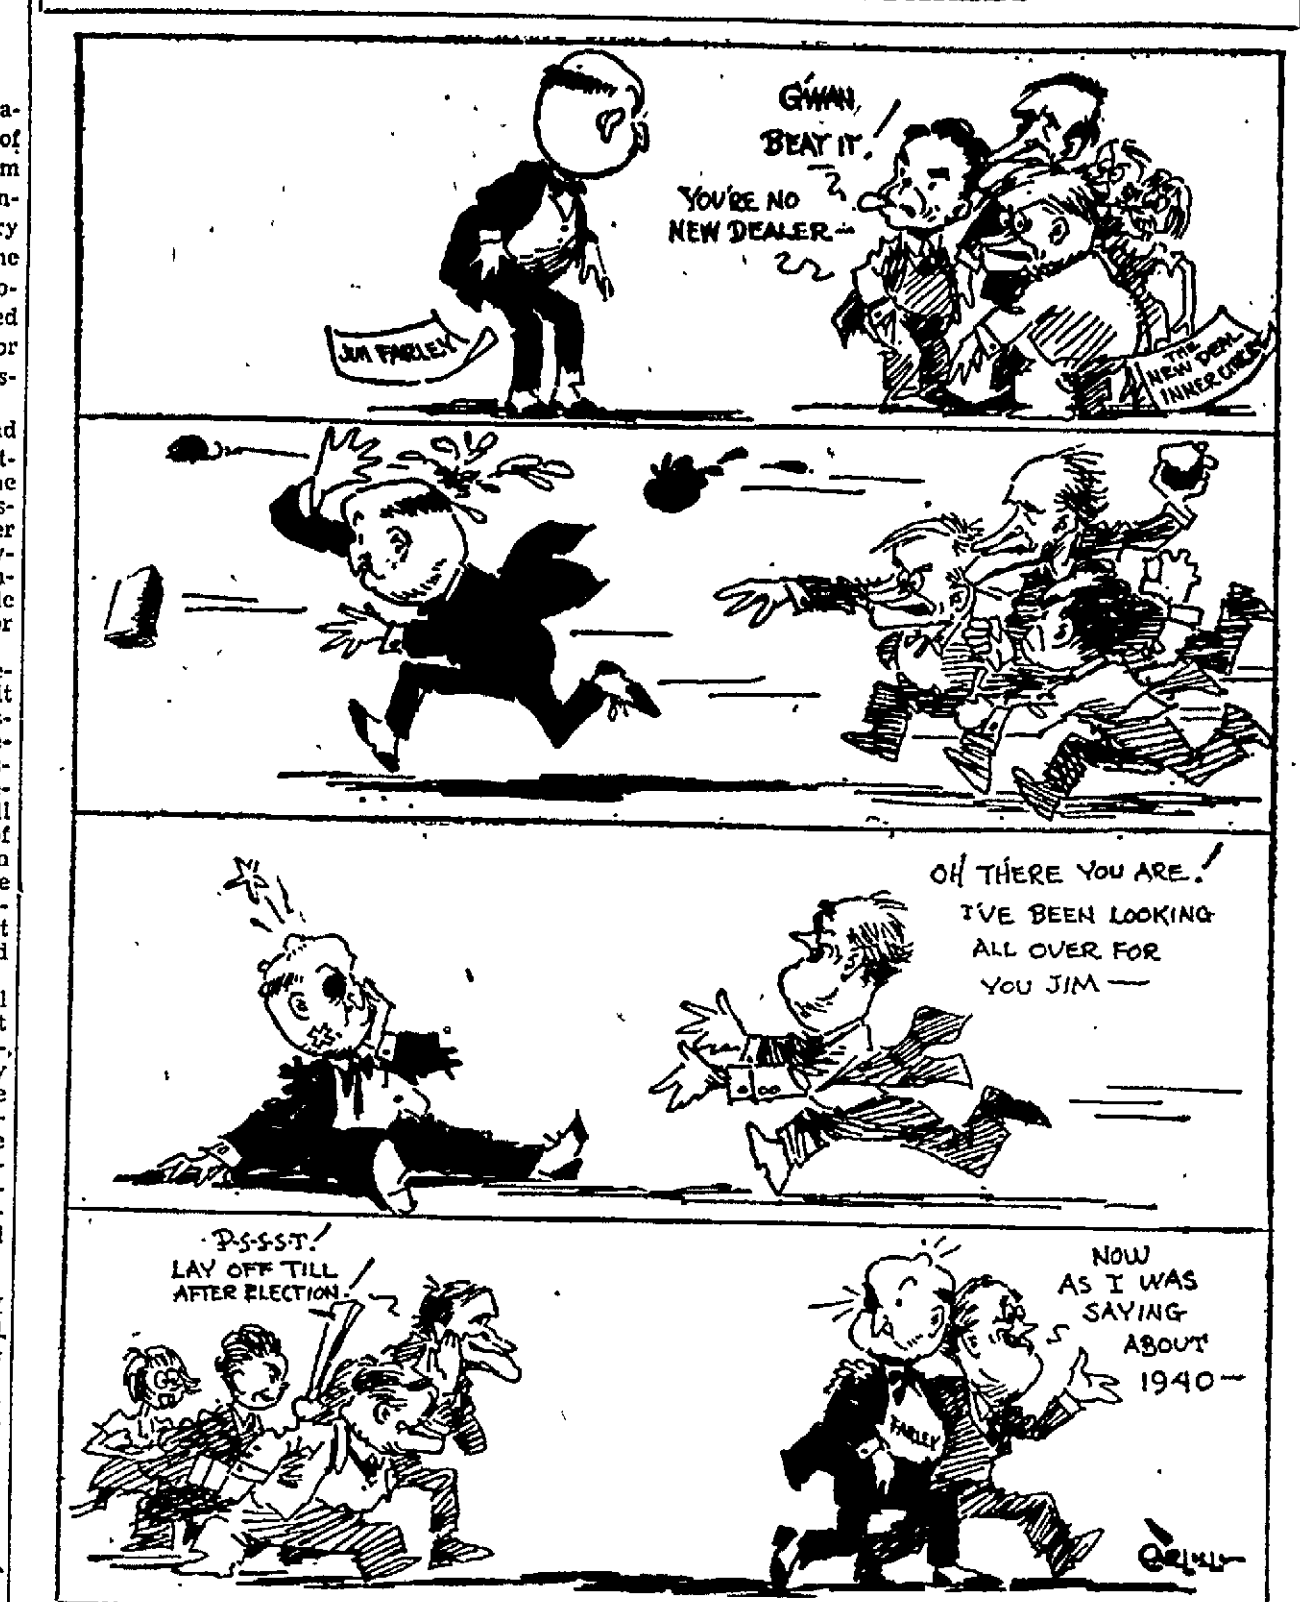

Solving difficulties like that is what senators are made for.

Editor Post-Crescent—Monday evening, June 5, 1939, the Post-Crescent quotes our assemblyman Mark Catlin as having said: "In my campaign last fall I pledged myself against the sales tax, and other Republican candidates did too. I will oppose it if it is introduced. Governor Heil hasn't thoroughly examined all the tax possibilities open to him. The Mutual Insurance companies ought to be taxed."

I am inclined to believe Mr. Catlin has taken a decided interest in stock insurance companies, or they in him, and that such interest is causing him to seek ways and means of damaging our home state mutual insurance companies under the flimsy guise of increasing the state revenue.

Mr. Catlin was repeatedly informed at a recent committee hearing on 762A (which proposes to tax the domestic mutual insurance companies) that all the income of a mutual insurance company is used to pay losses and expenses, and the balance, if any, is placed into a policyholders surplus fund, which

Madison—Governor Heil has earned headlines in the state's press repeatedly by speeches in which he made public

Wyngaard

Heil has said that he wanted a lot of things, but it has been difficult to carry out them promises.

That background must be remembered in considering the governor's speech in Milwaukee this week when in rather vague terms he talked about setting up a state merchandising system to help Wisconsin agriculture solve its problem of disposing of cheese and other products.

The governor is sometimes not very articulate. His meaning are not always clear. Thus some observers interpreted his Milwaukee speech as similar in its suggestions to the ill-fated Townley experiment in the west some years ago.

SOCIALISM?

While Heil's suggestions for a fund fluctuates from year to year as the company's losses fluctuate.

Mr. Catlin was also informed that mutual insurance companies are non-profit organizations furnishing insurance at cost, without a profit, therefore any tax imposed upon them will not be observed as it might be in the case of a privately owned stock company, but will eventually be passed on to the policyholder, just as a sales tax is passed on to the consumer of any other commodity. It is apparent Mr. Catlin's statement has an inconsistency within it which is surprising, considering the numerous and explicit briefs explaining this (and which he heard as given against 762A about a week ago).

Mr. Catlin has either forgotten or ignores the fact that Wisconsin has always followed the policy of favoring the development of domestic mutual insurance companies, as is evidenced by the reported failure of attempts to tax them. There is no premium tax on domestic mutual insurance companies domiciled in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, nor Minnesota, nor in many other states. If Wisconsin taxes them in accordance with Mr. Catlin's suggestion, you will see a migration of them to the states that believe in fostering their home industries.

Incidentally, a tax on mutual insurance companies, as suggested by Mr. Catlin, would fall most heavily upon farmers and business men because they are the heaviest carriers of mutual insurance and pay by far the highest premium rates, due to the unavoidable hazards connected with their respective businesses.

A suggestion that a tax be placed on the premiums (sales) of a domestic mutual insurance company, in the face of facts and information proving its inadvisability, seems motivated by something other than a desire for good constructive tax legislation. This seems especially apparent when it is considered that the tax on mutuals, if imposed would raise a paltry revenue for the state compared to the amount needed.

FRACTURE OF WRIST

The familiar "Colles" fracture, of the end of the larger forearm bone (radius) close to the wrist joint, often leaves more or less lasting stiffness or diminished flexibility at the wrist and perhaps limited or painful rotation, conditions which may handicap a patient in his or her occupation.

Formerly it was the customary practice to reduce the fracture, that is, manipulate the broken bones until they were restored as nearly as possible to their proper position or alignment, and then apply splints or cast to retain them rigidly fixed in the correct position for a number of weeks, until sufficient callus or new bones formed to cement the fragments together strongly enough to hold without further support.

But alas, such treatment failed to take into consideration the functional, as well as the anatomical or structural conditions involved. On removal of the splints or cast, perhaps two months or more following the injury, it was not unusual to find the arm withered and weak from long disuse and a deformity at the seat of fracture which had not been so perfectly reduced as the doctor thought.

Warlike experience taught surgeons that better results were to be obtained by rather less rigid and less prolonged immobilization by splints or casts and by early state retailing system for farm goods had decided socialistic implications, it is more than likely that he has been thinking in terms of a project which has been discussed previously in state agricultural circles.

As a matter of fact state agricultural officials a few months ago were talking about the feasibility of organizing a big state producer cooperative, which would be guided and supervised, but not subsidized, by the state government. The cooperative would be the central merchandising agency for those individual farmers, cheese factories, and small local cooperatives which would want to join. Markets, state promotion and advertising.

However, it should not be inferred that Heil has merely been making speeches on the farmer's distribution problem. He has been doing a lot of things. It isn't supposed to be known but long before he made his startling speech in Milwaukee this week, he had evolved a plan to obtain $2,000,000 from the state emergency board to tackle the problem of disposing of the state agricultural surplus by an intensive national drive.

CONTRADICTION

It ought also to be remembered—and it appears that the governor realizes it—that some of the state's agricultural promotion funds are being wasted because a demand is being created outside the state which the state agricultural industry cannot fill, despite the fact that its most vital problem at the moment is a surplus. State agents have repeatedly received big orders for cheese from big eastern population centers then found that the orders could not be handled, simply because they were so big. The reason was that the cheese industry is decentralized, consisting of about 2000 small manufacturing units, and that it is producing cheese in a form which is not as salable as it could be.

Both of these difficulties could certainly be tackled and probably solved by the state marketing plan which Heil has been thinking about, ill-defined as his plans are.

Mamma used to tell us boys that we should always think three times before complimenting a sensitive person. You never can tell when they're apt to take your compliment the wrong way. My brother was always so careful about compliments, he'd never take a compliment to his school teachers without first splitting 'em open to see that the apples didn't have worms. I'll never forget the time Uncle Pud went back to Bideville, his boyhood home. The minute he got off the bus, he bumped into Miss Birdie Cool, the old-maid of the town. ## CAR BALKS ON DRIVER, CRASHES INTO GARAGE

When its driver lost control, the car shown above swung into a wide arc at an intersection at Greenville about 11:30 last night, broke a traffic sign, crashed through the closed doors of the Schroeder garage, wrecked a grease rack and stove and stopped against the rear wall of the building. The student driver, Miss Marion Long, 18, 518 N. State street, and the teacher, Kenneth Maynard, 24, 115 E. Spring street, escaped with shock. The path taken by the car after it went out of control is shown in the diagram at the right. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Car Crashes Into Garage When Student Driver Loses Control

Kenneth Maynard, 24, 115 E. Spring street, learned last night that teaching another person how to drive an automobile can be dangerous as well as a strain on the nerves.

His student was Miss Marion Long, 18, 518 N. State street, and the lesson ended abruptly about 11:30 last night at Greenville when their car swung in a wide arc at the intersection of Highways 76 and 45 and crashed through the doors of a garage.

Miss Long was behind the wheel and headed northwest on Highway 76 when she stopped for the arterial at the intersection. Maynard shifted the gears and the girl began making a left turn. The machine went out of control and Maynard grabbed the steering wheel and swung the car about so that it missed a telephone pole. However, the machine kept right on turning moving down a county traffic sign going through the closed doors of the Schroeder garage at the left side of Highway 76, smashing a new grease rack and a stove and finally stopping against the rear wall of the building.

The couple escaped with shock, according to Jack Frenz, county traffic officer who investigated. The front end of the machine was damaged.

Despite the mishap, Lady Luck seemed to be with the couple because the doors through which the car crashed were the only part of the lower section of the building not of concrete block construction.

Drizzles of rain from a dark sky spoiled a golfer's afternoon and brought the temperature down to the lower 60's in Appleton and vicinity today.

Alumni of Lawrence college, scheduled to gather on the south campus early this afternoon for a picnic, met within the Alexander gymnasium instead after glancing at the unchanging skies and soaked grass.

Compared with the storm that raged Wednesday, today's rain was quiet and peaceful. There was little wind and no lightning.

The weatherman said today that showers would probably continue tonight, but that Wisconsin can hope for a fair Sunday, with rising temperatures.

The thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 61 degrees at 12:30 this afternoon. For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 74, recorded at noon yesterday, and the lowest 54, at 8 o'clock this morning, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power company charts.

State Objects to Boosting Freight On Badger Paper

Wisconsin Representatives File Objections At I.C.C. Hearing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Representatives of the Wisconsin public service commission were in Chicago this week to oppose at an interstate commerce commission hearing freight rate changes which would damage Fox river valley commerce.

Because the paper industry of Wisconsin is already feeling outside competition, the commission sent staff men to the hearing to oppose proposed freight rate increases on paper products shipped from Wisconsin production centers to the southwest.

The commission said that the importance of the paper industry to the state is indicated by its records showing that in 31 state communities nearly 17,000 persons are employed and earn payrolls of more than $2,000,000 a month from manufacturers not including the compensation of salaried officials. The industry is the fourth largest in the state, it was said.

The proposed rate schedule would increase the charge on Wisconsin paper shipments from 1 to 12 cents a hundred pounds.

In its arguments to the federal commission, the state body pointed out that in the last ten years the Wisconsin paper industry has invested $545,000 in new paper plants and additions to old ones. During the same period Georgia built more than $14,000,000 worth of new paper plants, and Louisiana more than $5,000,000.

Low cost labor, cheaper electricity from federal plants, and lower priced raw materials give the south an advantage over Wisconsin industries, the commission's studies showed. The cost per ton of material and labor for one class of paper product is $73.25 in Wisconsin, but only $36.25 in Louisiana, one of the competitive states.

Practically all wood used in the manufacture of newsprint in Wisconsin is imported from Canada, and transportation expenses are

Rain today was expected to force postponement of the 'most beautiful baby' parade to 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in connection with the Good Will and Friendly Neighbors festival at Pierce park.

An equestrian fashion parade also will highlight Sunday's performance. Riders will be judged on general riding form and the winner will receive a trophy.

Sunday's program also will include a Punch and Judy show, a marionette show, singing, Maypole dancing, folk dancing, a flag ceremony, a vaudeville show in the pavilion and social dancing.

The beauty contest for girls was canceled because of an insufficient number of entrants.

Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Lehrer, who paid the fine, was arrested June 5 by a state traffic officer.

high, the commission continued. In the south vast areas of forests are available, "almost in the manufacturer's back yard."

But the paper industry will not be the only one to suffer from the rate changes, it was said. In 1937 the value of all manufactured products in Wisconsin was $201,000,000 less than in 1927.

Yet in Texas 1937 manufactured products were valued at $375,000,000 more than in 1927. Other states also showed increases.

"Should freight rates on paper products be changed to a higher level, state manufacturers would have added disadvantages in their struggle to compete in American markets," the state commission said.

School Girls are Taught to Swim in New Menasha Pool

Over 100 in Junior, Senior High School Learn During Year's Program

Menasha — More than 100 Menasha Junior and Senior High school girls learned to swim in the new Menasha High swimming pool during the last year, according to the summary of activities prepared by Miss Marijane Jex, girls physical education instructor.

There were no girls unable to swim at the end of the year but some had to acquire more endurance. In addition to the regular classes during the year, a grade school program was conducted with 120 girls participating. Of that group 90 were able to swim in deep water at the end of the month of May while 29 gained the ability to master strokes but lacked endurance for deep water swimming. Only 11 were unable to take care of themselves in the water at the end of the month.

In the junior and senior high schools 188 girls were enrolled in the required swimming classes. Of that number 44 were able to swim at the beginning of the year and 119 learned to swim in deep water. Twenty-five learned well enough to swim in shallow water.

Swimming is required in the physical education program for the seventh and eighth grade of the junior high school and in the freshman and sophomore years of the senior high school. In addition 90 girls participated in swimming after school.

Grade Pupils Learn

Of the 41 seventh grade girls, 10 were able to swim at the start of the year, 27 learned to swim in deep water and four were kept in shallow water. In the eighth grade class of 31 girls, nine were able to swim, 17 learned how and five needed more endurance at the end of the year.

In the freshman class of 57 girls 12 were able to swim, 38 learned to swim in deep water and seven were kept in shallow water. The sophomore class of 59 girls had 19 who knew how to swim at the start of the year, 37 who learned how to handle themselves in deep water and nine who remained in shallow water.

In addition to the extensive swimming program, intramural basketball, volleyball, ping-pong and badminton tournaments were conducted. The ping-pong tournament attracted 62 entries and the badminton 65. A total of 119 girls entered the basketball tournament, including 40 freshmen, 38 sophomores, 26 juniors and 15 seniors. The volleyball teams attracted 38 freshmen, 38 sophomores, 20 juniors, and 12 seniors, a total of 106 students.

Foundry Nine to Play at Waukau

Neenah Team Will Seek Even Break in Wolf Valley Standings

Neenah—After two successive defeats, the Neenah Foundry baseball team will attempt to climb back to a 500 rating at the expense of Waukau in a Wolf Valley league game Sunday afternoon. The game will be played at Waukau.

The foundry team started strong but the attack has crumbled in the last two games in which the team has collected two runs. Waukau is in a tie for second place in the league standings with three victories and one defeat. Butte des Morts holds first place with four wins against one defeat. Waukau and Omro, the two teams tied for second place, were rained out of their scheduled tilt.

The Neenah entry has won two games and lost three in the league. The Waukau team humbled Allenby by a 19 to 1 score last week. The Foundry nine likewise has picked up a one-sided victory over Allenby.

Falcons to Face Appleton Squad

Fox Valley Teams to Meet in Celler Battle at Menasha Sunday

Menasha—The Menasha Falcons will oppose the Appleton Becher Tavern team in a Fox Valley league cellar contest at 2:15 Sunday afternoon at the new Menasha stadium. Both teams have won a single contest although the Falcons are alone in the cellar because they have played and lost one more game than the Appleton team has.

The Falcons have failed to show much heavy work with the stick this year. Pitching has not been bad although not as strong as when Dave Kosloski was hurling low-hitting games. The batters have failed to get the pitchers enough runs to work on and in addition defensive lapses have kept the pitchers in trouble.

Syl Omar probably will get the call for the starting mound work for the Falcons Sunday. He worked the 10-inning game against Oshkosh and allowed 10 hits. Although he did mix in plenty of walks, he did keep the hits scattered and defensive lapses cost the ball game.

The lone victory scored by the Falcons was over Manitowish. Score arms have handicapped H. Stutzkowski and A. Sandburg who were expected to carry the hurling load. Zielski and Mayevski will be available for relief duty on Sunday.

Badger Nadelny and F. Kolakowski are topping the team in hitting with 333 averages each. However, Nadelny has been having an erratic season on the field. Manager Buzanowski will use his usual lineup.

Physical Education Teacher Outlines Swim Safety Tips

Menasha — Because there will be hundreds of enthusiastic new swimmers this summer who will be venturing into deep water for the first time, Miss Marijane Jex, girls physical education instructor at Menasha High school, today offered a number of suggestions to guide swimmers in the hopes that water tragedies may be avoided this summer.

Most of the new swimmers will be those who learned the art in the high school swimming pool, which is a great deal different from swimming in an open body of water, which with its current and waves, tends to add more danger to swimming, Miss Jex cautioned.

Distances are difficult to judge over water, she stated. A raft may appear to be a very short distance from shore until the swimmer has swam out a ways and become tired. "Adapt yourself to water conditions before attempting to swim distances. Above all, never swim

59 Students Make Attendance Marks

Kaws Will Invade Merchants' Park

Christofferson to Hurl for Neenah in Fox Valley League Tilt

Neenah—The Neenah Merchants will oppose the Kaukauna Brawns in a Fox Valley league game at 2:15 Sunday afternoon at Washington park. Christofferson, Merchant pitcher-ball expert will get the starting call for Manager Bill Handing's team while Cash will do the receiving.

The Kaukauna team did hold a share of the league lead until last Sunday when Little Chute, one of the cellar teams of the league, pulled an upset and knocked the Kaws out of a share of first place. The defeat was the first of the year for the Kaukauna team and also was the first victory for the Little Chute team.

S. Schuler probably will do the hurling for Kaukauna with Martens doing the catching. The Merchants have been hitting at a 249 average in six games this season.

The probable lineup for the Merchants will have Manager Bill Handing at first, Ken Handing at second, Gammy at shortstop and Gartzke at third base. The outfield will include Cheslock in left, Gullickson in center and Fitzgerald in right. Gullickson has been turning in some fielding gems in games this year. While Fabienkrug is leading the team in hitting with a .455 average, J. Christofferson, the pitcher, is batting .333 while Gartzke is batting .304.

Row of Stakes Marks Boundary Between Neenah and Menasha

Menasha—The boundary line between the United States and Canada stretches for thousands of miles across the continent, unmarked by any barriers, but a row of stakes today marks the boundary line between Neenah and Menasha on Nicolet boulevard.

Pursuant to instructions issued by the Menasha council at its session Thursday night, the Menasha city engineer's department today took the first step in removal of Menasha's side of the boulevard. A row of stakes divides the boulevard from Washington street to Ahnappi street and on the east end of the boulevard another row of stakes marks the dividing line for 40 feet back from the end of the boulevard.

After negotiations carried on intermittently for the last six months, the Menasha aldermen decided on action and ordered the engineer to make the survey. Work was scheduled to start Monday morning but a conciliatory note entered the picture this morning when Mayor Edwin A. Kalfas of Neenah and Mayor W. H. Jensen of Menasha conferred on the problem. A joint meeting of the councils will be arranged for next week and work will not start until after that session. The time and place of the meeting have not been arranged.

"Safety Measures"

Menasha wanted to remove the east end of the boulevard as a safety measure so the fire truck can turn onto Lake road. Menasha also wanted to remove the west end of the boulevard as a safety measure because of the traffic hazard caused by the narrow street in front of St. Patrick church.

Neenah aldermen agreed to the removal of the east end of the boulevard but did not agree to removal of the west end. Neenah also wanted removal of the small islands in the boulevard opposite Second, Fourth and Twelfth streets in Neenah. There are no intersecting streets opposite those islands in Menasha.

Attempts at a compromise some 8 or 7 years ago failed and discussion died out only to be revived last fall. A. E. McMahon, Art Scholl, Hugh Van Avery and R. W. Schlegel of the Menasha city engineer's staff and Reuben Tuchscherer, chairman of the street committee, put the stakes in place this morning.

Ickes Has His Faults but Does Well in Cabinet Post

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Some persons have been unkind enough to suggest that Harold Ickes' proposal of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt was made for selfish reasons. If the New Deal were turned out a horde of political derelicts would be seen thumbing their way out of Washington and men and women who now enjoy more or less importance and power would be with the repudiated patriots of the Hoover administration. There are so many of them that they might even form a pressure group to hold annual conventions, lobby for a bonus and march on the capital flaunting their clipping books as reminders of the years when they toiled to save the nation. Some, no doubt, would obtain medical certificates and appeal for rated disability for internal ills incurred in engagements above and beyond the call of duty in the cocktail room of the Mayflower hotel.

But Mr. Ickes would not be among them. In the first place, Mr. Ickes is not poor, and it is unjust to him to think that he could not continue to make at least as much in private life as he now receives from the treasury.

He could turn to radio, run a detective agency and become a newspaper columnist. Mr. Ickes has talent, energy and a ravenous appetite for public attention, and it is incorrect to suppose that the country would have heard the last from him if he were voted out. He probably would be able to run his earnings up well beyond $100,000 a year and a cigarette testimonial from him would be worth $10,000 of any agency's money.

True he does not smoke cigarettes and has disparaged them but Red Grange also was a non-smoker who had voiced hygienic objections. And much a rich, aristocratic lady, accustomed all her life to servants, roll up her sleeves and make her own biscuits to qualify as an authority on baking powder?

It's Said That He'd Miss Power of His Job

It is said also that Mr. Ickes would miss the power which he enjoys as secretary of the interior and the little Cobbeles of the New Deal. That doubtless is true, and we would miss the magnificence of an office big enough for a bowling alley and reminiscent of the stories of Mussolini's vast hall in which callers lose their poise while walking the long mile from the door to the personage at the desk.

A frugal man and not indifferent to the profit motive in his own affairs, as distinguished from the affairs of others, he would miss certain petty luxuries, too, but most of all he would hate to be licked after the one success of his life. He is devoted to Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal to such an extent that he is willing to cramp or shrink democracy in particulars which he considers unessential to make it work in parts which he considers to be vital.

He is a born sore-head, and although he is a naturalized Democrat, having been a stateless or Nansen sort of Republican for years, he always nagged and pestered and scuffled for reform during his years in Chicago. He took only his first papers as a Democrat only when Mr. Roosevelt came along. Like the naturalized German, he has tried to disqualify many who were there while he was an alien fighter for Charles Evans Hughes.

Mr. Ickes would miss the power of office, but mostly because he thinks he is exercising that power for the good of the masses of the people, as distinguished from the nation. I think he puts the people ahead of the nation in his feeling or believes that the nation will be all right if the people prosper.

He is ornery, inexact, reckless and inconsistent, and his dislike of journalism I attribute to rancor because he tried the newspaper business and did not make the grade. But the fact remains that the country would miss his ability as much as he would miss the job. He loses some appreciation by reason of his partisan quarrelsomeness in matters that are not the business of his department. But his job is that of secretary of the interior, and will someone name a better one, off-hand?

Truckers at Home To New London '9'

Clintonville to Protect First Place Lead in State Loop

HAS WON 4, LOST 1

Seymour at Manitowoc In Afternoon, at Bay in Evening

NORTHERN STATE LEAGUE
	W. L. Pct.
Clintonville	4 1 .800
Two Rivers	3 2 .600
Manitowoc	3 2 .600
Seymour	2 2 .500
Green Bay	2 3 .400
New London	0 4 .000

NEXT SUNDAY'S GAMES
Two Rivers at Green Bay.
Seymour at Manitowoc.
New London at Clintonville (p. m.)

Clintonville — The Clintonville FWD Truckers baseball team will make the next bid to hold first place in the Northern State League Sunday night when the New London High Lifes invade the local park for a starlight contest.

So far this season the Trucks have had a taste of all opponents in the league with the exception of a rain-out out contest with Two Rivers. In the five league games the Trucks have defeated Green Bay twice, New London, once, Manitowoc once, and went down to defeat before Seymour. However, the Trucks still are all alone in first place and inasmuch as New London has yet to win a game it appears the locals still will be at the top after Sunday night.

The first encounter between the High Lifes and the Trucks was little less than a track meet with the Trucks scoring almost at will. However, New London has reorganized and is determined to pull out of the rut Sunday night. Clintonville and New London always have been arch rivals and when the two get together there is bound to be excitement.

Manager Len Goerlinger of the Trucks is confident now has found his best combination in both the infield and the outfield. Goerlinger's infield, according to him, is the best ever to represent Clintonville on the ball diamond. With Ray Trimble, who is a prodigy of Red Smith at Hopkinsville and later with the Milwaukee Braves, at first, Ty Stiel, who has been a dangerous man at the bat, on second, Herb Palmer, first baseman and one of the most brilliant shortstops in the circuit, at short, and Rollie Kersten, whose fielding has won more than one game for the Trucks, at third, Manager Goerlinger has his first place infield.

In the outfield the Trucks boast of Matt Wagner, Al Ankerson and Pete Fox. All three are good stickers and have played practically errorless ball.

Clintonville also proudly displays its battery. Sid Felts, who last year set the league agog with his flashy performances, and John Tomlin, who is having a sensational comeback this year winning his first two starts are doing the hurling. Gene Volkman, a local boy who has made good, is doing the receiving.

Green Bay will play two games at home. In the afternoon, Clusman & Co. will lock horns with Two Rivers while at night Seymour will be the attraction at Joannes park. The Seymour contest is a playoff of the rain-out engagement of May 28.

Andy Fortin, veteran Polar Bear slasher, will probably draw the mound assignment against the Bays and Prucha will be on the receiving end. Chet Hume, a left-hander and Simons have been named to work for the Sox.

Seymour invaded Manitowoc in the afternoon and on their return trip Row & Co. will stop off in Green Bay for the starlight fracas. Porky Penzenstadler is slated to do the twirling against the Ships while Dick Weisberger, the speedball artist, will have the first call in the night game. It will be Kluckman and Streser for Manitowoc in the Seymour contest.

Crowd of 1,000 Sees

House of David Team

Defeat Clintonville

Clintonville — Over a thousand baseball fans from this area jammed the Clintonville Athletic park last night to see the original House of David baseball team hang up an 8 to 1 victory over the Clintonville FWD Truckers. Playing a faster and sensational game than ever, the House of David team, witnessed in this section of the country, the bearded boys had little trouble in running the score up and at the same time keep the Trucks from doing any damage.

The part of the House of David baseball show that kept the huge crowd clamoring for more was the "pepper game" put on by three of the bewiskered boys, Tally, Tucker, and Anderson. The three boys kept the ball moving so fast between them that it took as though they were each using a separate ball.

The Trucks were keyed up to a point where they were miffing the ball during the first few innings but after they got warmed up gave the Davids a little closer competition. Trucker Manager Len Goerlinger used three pitchers, starting Felts for three innings, then using Letty Joe Peteka for four stanzas and letting John Tomlin finish the game. This was Peteka's first appearance of the season on the mound and from the looks of things Peteka has still got a lot on the ball and should come in handy for the Trucks during the rest of the Northern State league season.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

SOMETHING new in the way of sports instruction was offered this week when the Appleton Post-Crescent completed arrangements for a tennis school to be held at the Appleton High school courts. George La Borde, Oshkosh, a well-known instructor, will handle the classes. The instruction is open to any one who wants to or can swing a racket, and it's all free. But at this particular moment we are extending a special invitation to join the classes, to the boys who will represent Appleton High school and Northeastern Wisconsin conference high schools in tennis next spring.

Appleton high had a rather large squad this season but didn't fair so well for lack of training and practice. And now comes an opportunity to receive some of the best instruction in the state gratis and get the Terrors among the Valley conference leaders. In the Northeastern conference, Shawano walloped the field. But there's no reason why Menasha, Neenah, New London, Clintonville and Kaukauna netters shouldn't have something to say about next season for they are included in our invitation.

A recent news story revealed that Appleton tennis facilities have been more than doubled with the construction of 13 new tennis courts since last fall. That means that tennis is fast becoming the principal means of recreation for a great many persons. But no game is fun unless you have mastered the fundamentals. If you can't hit a tennis ball straight and get it over the net, it's no fun. That's why the tennis school is being offered — the best of instruction for nothing.

The registration blank for the school is on one of the sports pages and will be carried there until next Thursday. But fill it out immediately for we'd like to know how many persons are interested. The first lessons will start June 19 and they are open to any person over 10 years of age.

A four-sport letter winner in a single season, something rather unusual in high school sports, is being boasted by Shawano High school. Yes, the young man is Billy Reed.

The versatile sophomore piled athletic honors sky high this year. In football, he was Shawano's triple threat artist and the chief ground gainer. When the season turned to basketball Billy did too, with the result that he broke the conference scoring record set by himself a year ago and was unanimously voted a place on the all-conference team. In tennis Reed won the conference and state singles championships and went through the entire season undefeated, except for one loss as a doubles partner against East Green Bay. On the track team, Billy ran with an outstanding half-mile relay quartet and placed in the short dashes at various times.

Everett Leonard, pro at Butte des Morts, is running a special golf event for tomorrow, Father's day. It's a faster and son 18-hole tournament. . . . And speaking of golf, they say that Dr. E. L. Bolton at Riverview has shown the utmost in consistency. He recently played four rounds of nine holes each — and each time he had a 44, no more, no less.

They've started reviving baseball at Fond du Lac which looks promising for Class D ball in the valley next spring. Herman Sanders has organized a team which will play independent ball probably under lights at a softball plant. Sanders has gathered together a group of youngsters, several of them with contracts with organized ball teams. It's even possible that the kids will make a likely Class D group and that being the case, Fondy will be several steps ahead of other Class D cities by having a lot of local talent.

Green Bay Packers Have 15 Fullbacks in Squad of 45

GREEN BAY—One of the most unusual squads in history will enter training here when the Green Bay Packers assemble in August for the National Football league championship race. Fifteen of the 45 players ordered to report are fullbacks.

It is not unusual for Notre Dame to have 12 fullbacks. Notre Dame's squad generally consists of 12 teams. But it is extraordinary and constitutes some kind of a record for one third of a pro squad to be assigned, or have had experience in major competition at one position.

Green Bay's fullback squad is led by the veteran Clarke Hinkle, regarded by many authorities as the greatest football player of all time, surpassing in all-around ability and team value even the famous Jim Thorpe and Bronko Nagurski. Immediately behind Hinkle, the All-National League fullback, is Eddie Jankowski, formerly of Wisconsin, who is an established packer star, and Frank Balazs of Iowa, obtained in the draft last winter. These men will handle Green Bay's fullbacking in the championship race.

The 12 others are men who played the position in college, or in the National league, but because of specialized talents have been assigned to other places in the lineup. They include veterans Hank Bruder and Herman Schneiderman, quarterback, Buckets Goldenberg, Swede Johnson and Pete Tinsley, guards, Brute Mulleneaux, center, and Cecil Isbell and Dick Weisberger, halfbacks.

Numerous Rookies
Rookies under contract who have had major college experience at fullback, but who will be made over into professional fullbacks, are: Larry Buhler of Minnesota;

METHODIST softballers came from behind and broke a tie in the tenth inning to defeat Mt. Olive, 14 to 13, in a wild church league game at Roosevelt school diamond last evening. St. Mary subdued B'nai Brith, 8 to 5, in another makeup game.

Mt. Olive showed a 6 to 1 lead at the end of the third inning but Methodist cut the margin to 7-6 at the end of the fourth frame. Mt. Olive stepped out again with three runs in the fifth for 10 to 6 advantage but Methodist came back with one tally in the sixth and five in the eighth to make the count 12 to 10 in its favor.

Mt. Olive counted two runs in the ninth to square things at 12-12. Methodist counted two runs in the extra inning while the best Mt. Olive could do was one marker.

St. Ottman tossed for the winners and was hammered for 15 hits while fanning 3 and walking 3. Helms mounded for Mt. Olive and gave up 12 hits while whiffing 9 and passing 8. L. Leopold slammed a home run, Damshausser and Rehfeldt got doubles while P. Laabs, E. Miller, C. Briggs and S. Krueger walloped doubles.

R. Hussey gave but six hits as St. Mary built up a big lead in the early innings of the tilt with B'nai Brith. He struck out five and walked one. M. Zussman and D. Zussman tossed for the losers and allowed 12 hits. Both struck out one while the former walked five and the latter issued one free trip. St. Mary snared two runs in the first inning against one for B'nai Brith, crashed through with four in the second and took a 7 to 1 lead at the end of the third. B'nai Brith threatened in the sixth and seventh frames when the squad garnered four runs. St. Mary topped things off with a marker in the ninth.

O. Shebilski and M. Zussman smashed home runs. R. Hussey and M. Zussman cracked triples and G. Libman was credited with a double.

St. Joseph School Wins First Catholic Boy Sports Crown

ST. JOSEPH school athletes won their first championship in Catholic Boy conference activities yesterday morning when they defeated Kimberly Holy Name, 3 to 1, for the softball title. The champions will be guests of the St. Joseph Holy Name society at a breakfast Sunday morning. Letters will be awarded and the conference trophy presented by Father Cypryan, O. M. Cap, pastor of the church.

Bleier hurled for the winners and gave one hit, struck out four and walked three. Van Cuyk was the Kimberly hurler and gave eight hits, struck out three and walked two. Derfus and Reitzner got doubles for the winners while C. Gaffney got Kimberly's lone safety. Kimberly was the first to score, the marker coming in the first frame when Bourassa opened with a walk, advanced to third on two infield outs and counted on Gaffney's roller to short which he beat out. Thereafter Kimberly got just two balls out of the infield.

Van Cuyk handcuffed St. Joseph batters until the fourth and then blew up. Weiland singled over second, Bleier popped to short but Steger hit sending Weiland to third. Bates rolled one to the pitcher and when he held the ball all hands were safe. Captain grounded to the batter's box and cleaned the sacks with a double.

Guldahl Title Hopes Fading as Snead Cards 138

Doubt Whether Two-Time Winner Can Catch Slammin' Sammy

BY GAYLE TALBOT

PHILADELPHIA — Barring a miracle, there will be no third term for King Ralph Guldahl in the national open golf championship.

As the field went into today's two final furious rounds at Spring Mill the husky two-time winner was right on the ragged edge, his revolting subjects on the verge of giving him the works. Guldahl wasn't ready to concede anything, but he must have felt nervous.

Sam Snead, the leader at the half way mark with 139 blows, was five gaudy strokes out in front of "The Moose" and playing hotter golf by the minute. With successive rounds of 68 and 71, the mountain boy looked like the probable winner. Between him and Guldahl were nine other assorted contenders. Four more were tied with the slipping champion at 144.

Horton Smith Second
Breathing on Snead's neck when the 66 qualifiers for the final 36 holes braved the scorching fairways, early today was Horton Smith, the former boy wonder, who posted a great 68 in his second round for a midway 140. Next was Craig Wood at 141 then Bud Ward, the Spokane amateur, and Denny Shute each with 142.

Grouped at 143 were Lawson Little, Harry Cooper, Harold McSpadden, John Bulla and Frank Moore. With Guldahl at 144 were Henry Lacey, Olin Dutra, Vic Ghezzi and Lloyed MacKenzie. That about rounded up those who are a real hope of getting the big cup tonight.

Others — men like Byron Nelson, Gene Sarazen, Paul Runyan, Tommy Armour, Billy Burke, Dick Metz and Jimmy Demaret had been whipped by Spring Mill's vast distances and dizzy heights.

Not Counted Out
So firm has been Guldahl's hold on the throne for two years that the boys feared counting him out of the running even yesterday and he soared to 73 strokes. Actually it wasn't until Snead, one of the last starters, came banging home with his 71 just before dark that the awed opinion was heard that "Guldahl will never catch Sam now."

Guldahl will find Snead a hard homie to take five shots away from. He admitted it as he set nervously in the clubhouse yesterday and heard reports of Snead's progress.

"I don't mind if Sam has a few strokes on me in the morning," he said without sounding boastful, "but if he has another hot round today he might get too far ahead to catch."

Lineups Unchanged For Second Polo Game

New York — (7) — With unchanged lineups, the United States and British polo teams met again tomorrow in the second game of the best-of-three series for the international challenge cup.

After the 11-7 beating the home forces handed out last week, it was considered possible one or two teams would revamp their lineups, but both the American defense committee and the British captain, Lord Cowdray, announced yesterday they would stand pat.

Although the Americans were favored to retain the trophy with a second-straight victory, the invaders haven't admitted defeat. Even if the series is decided in two straight games, a third will be played a week from tomorrow.

Armstrong May Take Winter Bout in Italy With Spoldi

BY EDDIE BRIEZE
NEW YORK — Extra: The N. B. A. is serious about taking steps to clear up the light-heavyweight situation. The grapevine says if John Henry Lewis doesn't appear in Washington next week for an examination by a group of eye specialists, the N. B. A. will unhook him and let Melio Belina (champion in New York), Billy Conn, Pittsburgh challenger, and maybe Ben Harvey, British champ, battle it out. . . . So far, Gus Greenlee, Lewis' manager, has refused to agree to the examination. . . . He says John Henry is no blinder than when he was regularly defending the title. . . . The British boxing board of control recently refused to let Lewis fight over there.

Catcher's Error Costs Washington Tilt With Indians

Feller Misses 10th Win
When He Gives Way
To Pinch Hitter

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Catcher Jake Early's error gave the Cleveland Indians the break they needed to win a 3-2 decision over Southpaw Kendall Chase and the Washington Senators yesterday.

Chase held the Tribe to one hit for eight innings and fanned left-handed starter, the ninth, Hal Trosky lifted a home run over right field wall to tie the count at 2-all, but Ken Keltner went out and Oscar Grimes missed a third strike for what should have been the third out. When the pitch went through Early for an error, Grimes was safe. Sammy Hale and Frankie Pytlak then singled to win the game.

Bob Feller, trying for his tenth victory, after giving up five blows, went out in the eighth for a pinch hitter, so Johnny Broaca was credited with the victory, which gave each team two victories in the four game series.

Star Riders Will Enter Hill Climb

Appleton Motorcycle Club
To Sponsor Event at Mosquito Hill

The Appleton Motorcycle club has sent invitations to all club riders in the middle west and an estimated field is expected to be entered in the hill climb June 25 at Mosquito hill near New London.

Top ranking state riders and many out-of-state stars already have submitted entry blanks for the competition. Prize money has been doubled and a ramp erected to give the riders a 30-foot level start which is expected to result in faster times and new hill records.

Joseph Schmitt has been named chairman of the advance ticket sale which now is under way. Tickets can be secured at the Valley Sporting Goods shop or the Arndt Motorcycle shop.

Among the local riders expected to compete are Winter Glaser, E. Helms and H. Helms. Six events in the novice, amateur and expert divisions are scheduled to begin at 1:15 in the afternoon. Parking space will be provided and a fence has been erected to protect spectators.

The competition is sanctioned by the American Motorcycle association.

Nickels starred at the plate when he drove in two runs with a double and scored twice on two hits in as many times at bat. Each team was charged with one error.

Teams wishing games with McGinnis Bar have been requested to call Len Krueger at 4063-W.

Squeeze Play Is Rare but Often Useful

BY ELY CULBERTSON
 "Dear Mr. Culbertson: Opportunities to make use of the squeeze technique present themselves rather rarely, but the other night, in a duplicate game, I had the pleasure of successfully executing squeezes on two consecutive deals. The following was the more interesting of the two."
 "West dealer.
 "Both sides vulnerable.
 "Match-point duplicate.

"The bidding:
 West North East South
 Pass Pass Pass 1 club
 Pass 1 heart Pass 2 clubs
 Pass Pass 2 diamonds Pass
 Pass 3 clubs Pass Pass

"You may not agree with the bidding, but that is the way the hands were bid at our table.
 "West led a diamond and East took the first two tricks with the queen and king. East continued with the diamond ace and, as declarer, I ruffed with the queen of clubs. I cashed the clubs ace and then led to dummy's jack. I could count eight tricks, but the ninth would be difficult to obtain. The best chance was to establish a spade in dummy for a heart break, hoping either for a 3-3 spade break or the capture of one honor in spades. This was rather a forlorn hope, since the defenders probably would see through the scheme and force me to play the heart ace from dummy before a long spade could be established. However, it seemed the only possibility, and the four of spades was played from dummy. East played the five, I put in the eight, and West won the jack. "West did see through my plan, but did not foresee later developments. He led the five of hearts, figuring that East must have the jack, since otherwise I would have attacked the heart suit earlier. The six of hearts was played from dummy and East won with the king. East then returned the diamond jack, hoping that his partner held the club ten, which either would give West an overruff right then or would build a trump trick for him later on. But I ruffed high and drew West's remaining trump. At the tenth trick the situation was as follows: I held the spade A-2, heart 8, and club 7. Dummy had the 10-9 of spades and the A-10 of hearts. West was down to the spade K-6 and the heart K-Q. East's hand did not matter, except that now, of course, his spade queen was blank, since he originally had only two. I led my last trump and West was squeezed. He knew that he could not afford to discard a heart, hence let go the spade 6. Now my spade ace dropped the K-Q together. Three clubs bid and made.

"J. E. H., Illinois."
 Obviously, the declarer did the best he could with the hand, but the defense faltered in more ways than one. As implied by my correspondent, the lead of the heart king by West, instead of the heart five, would have broken up the squeeze, but this feat also could have been accomplished by East. When the heart jack held the trick East should not have returned a fourth diamond in the hope of establishing an overruff for his partner, because he should have realized that this was out of the question. The declarer never would have played the hand as he did play it if he had lacked the ten of clubs. From East's point of view the possibility of a squeeze on his own partner should not have been too difficult to visualize, since East himself now was down to the blank queen of spades and since West was marked with the king and queen of hearts. Instead of wasting the lead on a fourth round of diamonds, East promptly should have returned a heart to remove dummy's only entry and forthwith break up any squeeze declarer might be contemplating.

My Neighbor Says—

Lilacs prefer a sweet soil and so an application of lime occasionally helps. They also like a feeding of well-rotted barnyard manure and a sunny exposure. If mildew appears on them in the fall, check it off by dusting bushes with sulphur.

Watch the stop cocks on the gas stove—to see that they are completely turned off. A small amount of escaped gas is enough to overcome those who remain in a closed room.

Purchase extracts in small quantities in small-sized bottles.

Breads, rolls and coffee rings may be reheated satisfactorily if they are placed in a paper bag, fastened tightly and warmed for five minutes in a moderate oven. They should be served immediately. If they are allowed to stand too long they will dry out.

Never rub soap directly onto blankets in laundering them. Use a soap jelly. After the blankets have been rinsed, dry them in the shade—to prevent them from turning yellow. Press satin or silk bindings with a warm, rather than a hot, iron.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Many a mother has wept when a medical authority has told her, "Nothing can be done now, but your child could have been spared this misery had we seen him when the thing first started." It may have been a physical deformity, a mark which could have been removed, crooked teeth which might have been straightened. Too late! "Why, oh why, didn't I have him examined earlier!" she moans.

There are various reasons why she didn't. Perhaps the child was not obviously ailing. Perhaps the family funds were low. Perhaps the child rebelled when he thought of an examination. There are a hundred or more reasons any of which may have caused the delay. But the wise mother will ride over all of them, and have her child examined periodically so she will not have a "too late" verdict to face later on.

Why Necessary
 "A child is constantly trying to put his body to see what it can do. At the same time he is learning to control it. He cannot do this without help," reads a very instructive survey on health and beauty.

"His parents can give him the protection and the guidance he needs day by day. But it takes special knowledge to find out from time to time how a small boy or girl is weathering the experience of meeting life.

"It also takes special knowledge to discover and remove any physical or mental handicaps which threaten a child's well-being. Such knowledge is possessed by a qualified physician. Parents can help to give their children a fair start by having a doctor check their physical progress at regular intervals. It is also important for children to be taken regularly to a dentist for the detection and correction of tooth defects."

Good Time Now
 "The day comes when a boy or girl passes out of the sheltered channel of childhood into the eddies and whirlpools of adolescence. This is a time when sex changes and rapid growth place an extra strain on the body," continues this candid survey.

"It is also a time when young people are apt to 'burn the candle at both ends. Sudden spurts of hard study which often come when boys and girls realize that graduation and the choice of a career are at hand, overexertion in vigorous and exciting sports, staying up late at night, and the natural disturbing emotional upsets of youth all use up so much energy that the body's defenses against disease may be weakened. It is between the ages of 15 and 25 that tuberculosis begins to make heavy claims. For boys and girls in the teens, a yearly medical examination may mean the avoidance of a long fight against disease."

Avoid Accidents
 "Accidents take the greatest toll of life among young people. Many accidents happen because the persons involved have some physical defect. A medical examination, which includes a checkup of the eyes and ears, will reveal a hazard of this kind."

At the end of the school year is an excellent time for a physical examination. The whole ten weeks before the child during which he or she may build up strength, correct any ailment, and thus preserve youthful loveliness. Routine examinations cost from two dollars to ten, depending upon the physician chosen. A young person could sacrifice a few small pleasures to cover the cost of a thorough examination.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
 Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you are ever moody or blue, there is a sure cure for your condition. Paste this "Case Record" in your scrapbook. It will prove an invaluable tonic. The body and mind interact, so memorize the basic laws of psychology explained today.

CASE N-180: Elaine B., aged 24, has been married for two years. "But I have such moody spells," she protested. "Sometimes for a day or two at a time I feel so miserable and unhappy. Life seems so futile."

"I have a good husband and plenty of friends. But I have all

Our heart is beating more slowly. We are relatively sluggish, physically, and this physical inertia has its psychological counterpart.

Why People Drink Coffee
 One reason for the great popularity of coffee for breakfast is the fact that its caffeine is a nerve stimulant. Thus, the heart begins to increase its rate, and the blood pressure begins to rise a few points. The digestion becomes stimulated and even the sweat glands start working more actively. Our body, as well as our mind, begins to "tune up" for the day's work.

With this increasing activity and raised blood pressure, we feel more zealous. Life takes on a rosy hue. And remember this psychological axiom: "You cannot be blue and be active!"

People who are gloomy and down in the mouth are usually indolent. They are sitting still or lying down. Their blood pressure may be low.

The Warming Up Phenomenon
 In our factories the workers usually require about 30 minutes before they reach their best output. We call this first half hour the "warming up" period.

It corresponds very well to the warming up by the football player or track athlete.

Even your cold automobile motor doesn't function best until it has warmed up a bit. And the human body and brain both require a similar warming up process.

If you are blue and downcast, it usually means you are too inactive. Remember another psychological axiom I have previously given you: "Act the way you'd like to be and soon you'll be the way you act."

Deliberately force yourself into activity. Go through the motions of your sales talk or your office job. Pretend you're happy or animated or even in love with your husband or wife, and you'll be surprised at the results.

Before very long you will have gained enough psychological momentum that you will not need to pretend, for you'll actually be happy and animated or in love with your mate. Test this law of psychology. It works!

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.

The Home Gardener

By Edwin R. Perkins

As years of gardening experience pile up on our shoulders, we begin to realize that we creep along in the dark, so far as knowledge of what must be added to our particular soil in order that we can meet the food requirements of the plants we desire to grow. We do the best we can but, eventually we concede that our successes or failures were brought about by poor guessing.

Many of us have undoubtedly guessed wrong in connection with the crops grown from seeds this year. We added manure if obtainable called fertilizers in prescribed proportions and still our plants may have a stunted appearance. Immediately we know that nitrogen has been added in insufficient quantities or, if sufficient was present, it passed off into the atmosphere before it could be taken up by the plants.

Fortunately this condition, when observed, can be remedied. The quickest corrective results are obtained along this line by using nitrate of soda. A small tablespoonful of nitrate of soda is dissolved in five gallons of water and this solution sprinkled around the plants. A fine rose on a sprinkling can is fine for this purpose. This quantity is sufficient to pep up plants in a space four feet square. Follow the application of this material by a thorough watering.

The treatment can be repeated about once every two weeks for about two months after which it should be discontinued. This application would produce plants carrying far too much foliage and too few blooms.

As to women's rights to drink and smoke, it is idle to argue, since they do it everywhere. But certainly no one will deny that the sight of an intoxicated woman is far more shocking and disgusting than that of a drunken man. Perhaps this is because we think of women as up-family, is it proper for the bride to write and invite them to her mother's house? Wouldn't it be better for the mother to invite such people?

Answer: The bride writes only to her personal friends; her mother should write notes of invitation to all others. A sample note to any friends of the groom or his family who are strangers to the bride might read: "My dear Mrs. So and So: My daughter, Mary, and John Smith are to be married here at home on Saturday the 17th of June at 3 o'clock. It would give us, as well as John, great pleasure to have you come to the wedding. Very sincerely, To his family she might write: "Dear Mrs. Smith: As you know, Mary, and your nephew John are being married on June 17th at 3 o'clock. We, as well as John, are looking forward to seeing you on that day."

LINE: AS A WEDDING PRESENT
 Dear Mrs. Post: Is it improper to give linen as wedding presents? I do not want to give silver, and being partial to fine linen, I would like to spend the amount that I otherwise would for silver and give her a linen damask cloth and napkins, all marked with her initials. I feel sure that she would appreciate this.

Answer: It is entirely proper and would be a lovely present. No matter how much linen her family may give her, a bride can always use extra items—especially when they are beautiful. A very ordinary item would not be suitable as an extra unless particular sentiment is attached to it—such as having been hand-worked by some one she cares for.

A CLERGYMAN'S NAME
 Dear Mrs. Post: "The Rev. Mr. John Smith" is the proper way to write the groom's name on the wedding invitations, or should it be "The Rev. John Smith"? There has been some question about this in the engraver's and I feel that he is not sure.

Answer: "The Rev. John Smith" is proper. "The Rev. Mr. Smith" is used only as a substitute for the clergyman's first name when one doesn't know, in order to avoid the "The Rev. Smith," which is very bad form.

WEDDING NOTES
 Dear Mrs. Post: I was under the impression that when a bride had only a small wedding in church, followed by a reception for just this intimate group afterward, it was proper for the bride herself to write the notes of invitation. However, when some of the groom's relatives who are being invited are practically strangers to the bride's

Shouldn't Try to Restrain Man Who Wants His Freedom

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married two years to a man who, after trying marriage, has decided that he was not cut out for domesticity. He says that he has no fault to find with me; that I have been a good wife; that I am pleasant to get along with, and a fine housekeeper and manager. Also, there is no other woman. But he just feels that he wants to be free and that marriage is a sort of jail that he has to break out of, or die. In our brief marriage he has twice left me. The first time he asked me to go back to my people and stay for a couple of months so he could test out his feeling and decide whether he wanted to go on with our marriage or not. I did as he wished and at the end of the time he came and begged me to return. The second parting was for five months. Then he also asked me to come back. But now after three weeks at home he asks me to go for good and give him a divorce. What shall I do?

DOROTHY DIX

Apparently you are wife in NAME ONLY, as the old melodramas used to say, so I think you will be wise to give him the divorce he desires so badly. Certainly there can be no happiness for you in such an unstable marriage with a man who doesn't know what he wants from minute to minute and who refuses to accept any of the responsibilities of marriage.

There are a lot of men who are celibate by nature and who should never marry. The pity of it is that they don't find this out before they break the hearts of their wives. No matter how beautiful a home their wives make for them, it is never anything but a prison from which they are always trying to escape.

The devotion of no woman repays them for their loss of personal liberty. Children are never anything to them but a ball and chain around their feet. They sacrifice their families to any fad, any hobby, any amusement, without even a thought of the crime they are committing against those whose lives they have taken in their hands.

Such men are not necessarily bad. On the contrary, they are frequently good, kind and lovable, but the call of the wild is in their blood and they are bound to answer it. They can't be tied down by domesticity. And so when a woman gets one of these untamed creatures, who is always struggling to be free, the only thing she can do is to loose his bonds and let him go.

Dear Miss Dix—All my life I have understood that a woman has a right to break an engagement, but if a man does he can be sued for breach of promise. Recently I have been told that a woman has no more right to break an engagement than a man has. Also, that in some cases women are being sued for breach of promise and forced to pay damages. Is this true? I believe in equality of the sexes, and that if men have the right to drink and smoke so have women, and that it is no worse to see an intoxicated woman than it is a drunken man. I also believe that a woman who is an unfaithful husband has a right to be a philanderer herself. Is it your opinion that it is a mother's duty to be an example to her children, while their father feels free to do as he likes.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS.
Answer: Either party has a right to break an engagement if he or she decides for any reason to call the marriage off. In the past it has been a matter of civility to let the woman save her face by doing it. But now it was the man who used to get out of the engagement. Both men and women have sued for breach of promise and asked for money to assuage their broken hearts, but, to their shame, it is women who do this oftener than men.

As to women's rights to drink and smoke, it is idle to argue, since they do it everywhere. But certainly no one will deny that the sight of an intoxicated woman is far more shocking and disgusting than that of a drunken man. Perhaps this is because we think of women as up-

However, when some of the groom's relatives who are being invited are practically strangers to the bride's holding the standards of morality and decency, so it horrifies us to see them dragging their white banners in the dust. Perhaps it is because drink shatters the nerves and degrades a woman more than it does a man, and when she sinks she goes deeper into the gutter than he does.

Maybe it is no worse for a woman to be a philosopher than it is for a man, but did two wrongs ever make a right? Did any wife ever bring her husband back to the straight and narrow road by taking the downward path herself? If children have an immoral father, isn't it all the more important that their mother should keep herself above reproach? They should have something clean and decent to tie to.

But I can't agree with you that a mother and father stand on the same plane in the home. It is infinitely more important that children should have a good mother than a good father, because the mother shapes their characters while the father is babes and her influence is far more potent than the father's.

Abstractly, women have the right to do all the things that men do, but let's hope and pray they won't exercise it.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl 20 years old, an only child. Quiet, studious, do good work at school and am obedient to my parents, but here is the catch: Suddenly my father, who is prone to notions that are veritable antiquities, informed me that I was a painted doll and must leave off lipstick and nail polish, which are all the cosmetics that I use. Now I have always worn lipstick and nail polish, and I don't want to stop. Surely common sense should tell him that I wear it when he is not around. However, I am afraid that some time there will be a day of reckoning when I defy him and put it on when we are going out to dinner, and I fear his wrath. My father is a grand man and a wonderful provider, but he is a domestic tyrant whose will must be obeyed. Our house is just like when he is crossed. Not a word is spoken at the table and nobody dares breathe until he is appeased. I have never had a steady boy friend on account of him. What to do?

Answer: Well, if you are one of the girls who put on their lipstick with a and here I am going to stay until the day we trip down the aisle. Thorn! Since I announced to the papers last month that I was going to give some of my millions to help the worthy working classes, I've been driven crazy by cranks! I am going to give some of the money away, but first I'm going to decide how to benefit the most people the most permanently. For goodness' sake, don't let any of these nutty schemers get into Scelliff! I know I'll be safe there from the vast army of the unemployed!"

Thorn's eyes met Jocelyn's. "You tell her," Lyn said. "I can't talk about it without choking." "Talk about what?" Nola asked, turning curiously from one to the other. "Don't tell me anything has happened to Scelliff? Of course I know Grandmother Jocelyn is gone. Don't tell me her death revealed a skeleton in the ancestral closet?"

"A skeleton would be simple to deal with," Thorn commented dryly. He went on to tell her about the will and the arrival of the Mack family.

"We offered them money to leave," Jocelyn added aggrievedly, "but every one of them is as proud and stubborn as he is poor. I never saw such people!"

"We don't have to see them any more," Thorn reminded her. "Nola, there's an eight-foot fence running the length of the place and each family stays on its own side."

"Mean and Horrible!" Nola's uncontrolled laughter pealed out. "It sounds priceless! Scelliff with a fence down the middle! Anyhow, since I'm neither a Russell nor a Mack, I shall interview both sides. Honestly, darlings, it's funny—don't look so tragic. Where's your sense of humor? You make it look and sound like a mountain feud! Don't worry so—the invaders will probably trek back to Texas one of these days and Scelliff can be easily restored."

Thorndyke brightened. "You might be right, Nola. At least it doesn't help matters any for Lyn and me to worry and fret. What do you say, Lyn? Let's agree to forget our neighbors and live our own lives!"

Is Geoff coming down for dinner tonight?" "I think so. He said something about a shipment of three ponies due this afternoon—" trowel and whose mouths always look like a raw cut of butchers' meat. I don't blame your father. But if you use it delicately and artistically, he is foolish to object to it. It is the abuse, not the use of cosmetics that is wrong. Personally, I think that we owe a debt of gratitude to every woman who turns mousy hair golden and stringy locks into becoming curls; who makes roses blossom on shallow cheeks, and turns straight pale lips into cupid's bows."

Two AGAINST LOVE
 by Frances Hanna

THE CHARACTERS
 Jocelyn Russell, beautiful heiress.
 Tally Mack, young farmer whose family has inherited half the Russell estate, Seaciliff.

Yesterday: Lyn is crushed by the appearance of the roadside stand, and Bob's part in it. Thorn's fiancée, Nola, is coming for a visit.

Chapter 13
 Nola

Jocelyn and Thorndyke met Nola Cranston at the Santa Barbara airport. It took them a few minutes to push through the surrounding circle of newspaper reporters and cameramen for Nola Cranston was heiress to the Cranston shoe factory millions and everything she did was news.

As the two Russells looked on she posed gracefully on the steps of the airliner, a tall, elegant figure in tailored black, her shoulders draped with silver fox skins. From her hand-made shoes to her Paris turban she registered assurance and sophistication. She was not beautiful; rather, unusual. "Striking" would fit her better than any other adjective. Her long hair, worn in a sleek, heavy knot on her neck, was bleached to the color of white gold; her eyes, elongated and wisely mysterious, were very black; her nose was sharp and thin; its aquiline arrogance contradicted by a wide, generous mouth which parted often to show perfect rows of white teeth.

Sprung Thorn and Jocelyn, she beckoned to them with a slim, sleet-tipped hand which held a cigarette in a long ivory holder. "Come here, darlings!" she commanded. "I want you both in my pictures."

Thorndyke, smug and pompous and proudly possessive, put his arm about Nola's waist and kissed her. His manner told the audience: "This woman is my future wife. Aren't you a rare and handsome pair?"

Later, with Nola wedged between them in the front seat of the cream-colored sedan, they all tried talking at once and had to subside, hopelessly, into laughter.

"Boston is impossible this time of year," Nola finally managed. "Melting snow, drizzling rain, and unbearably stuffy people. I made fun of my mind on the way out here that I'm not going back. Here I am

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

SATURDAY TALK

Some months ago, Richard Barwick, a boy who reads our column, asked me to write about "the value of travel."

One good thing about travel is its power to broaden our minds and viewpoints. We learn that things are not always done as we have been used to seeing them done in our home city, village or country district.

All through the ages, people have found out things by traveling. The travelers have learned, and they have taught people they met.

The ancient Phoenicians were great travelers, and they are honored for having spread knowledge of the alphabet. It seems certain they did not invent the alphabet, but they found out about it, and passed the facts along. The art of writing helped them in their trading when they sailed to Greece and other lands on the borders of the Mediterranean sea.

Another value of travel comes from the people we meet. No matter what country we visit, we can be sure it contains many kindly and worth-while people. We may not find many of them, but they are there if we look for them. I think every traveler who takes his good nature with him is sure to meet friendly people in a foreign land.

In my travels, I have covered about a quarter of a million miles by railway and steamer, and on every journey abroad I have made new friends. When I have not known how to reach a certain public building or railway station, I always have found people who were glad to tell me how to get there. Quite often, a man has gone out of his way to walk alongside me until I reached the place I was looking for.

We can learn about history in our travels. Such places as the British museum in London and the Louvre in Paris contain hundreds of objects which date back to ancient times. There are statues made by ancient Greeks and Romans. There are small playthings which were used by boys and girls in ancient Egypt.

One good hint for travelers is this: be sure to read about countries before you visit them. Know something about their history, and their old customs. This will make you enjoy your visit more, and will help you to understand the things you see.

Week-end Digest of Business Activity In Appleton and Vicinity

Van Zeeland Music Co. Provides Way to Improve Vacation Hours

Now that school is out and Young America generally has congratulated itself on many weeks of freedom, parents and children alike are finding that too many unproductive hours create a problem. There is a limit, after all, to the amount of playing, hiking, swimming and odd jobs around the house to be done.

Consequently, although school has been out for but a short time, countless mothers are beginning to look hopefully toward the day when classrooms will enable her to have a few hours of peace at home.

Recognizing this situation, the Van Zeeland Music company, 128 N. Appleton street, has made arrangements for music training of a type that young people will thoroughly enjoy. Furthermore, this training is so scientific — and yet so inexpensive — that parents will deeply appreciate it.

The Van Zeeland firm stocks a wide variety of instruments in its new headquarters, and makes a practice of testing a student's aptitude and potential musical talent before attempting to start him out on an instrument. Dull practice sessions are eliminated since the student starts in to play real tunes very early in his musical experience.

Van Zeeland's methods, plus the firm's moderate prices and reasonable terms, make the possibility of music training a very real one to practically every family. A visit to the store or a telephone call will bring complete details.

Tell Advantages Of Verco Plaster In Construction

One of Many Products Offered by Guenther Cement Co.

Possessing all the virtues of ordinary sand plaster plus numerous advantages that sand plaster lacks, Verco Insulating plaster, manufactured and distributed by the Guenther Cement Products Company, 725 S. Outagamie street, is vouched for by scores of local users of this economical product.

The use of Verco Insulating Plaster involves no special skill, the Guenther firm explains, for it is handled exactly like sand plaster. It takes all the usual finishes—plus others of its own—and looks and feels like an ordinary plaster wall. A wall made with Verco, this firm continues, insulates, absorbs sound, offers fireproof protection, and is crack-resistant. Not intended as a substitute for standard insulations or full acoustical treatments, Verco, however, gives many times the effectiveness of a sand plaster wall and used in conjunction with insulating or sound-absorbing materials, it increases its efficiency.

Any one of its many advantages over sand plaster is sufficient reason for choosing Verco, the Guenther firm maintains, even though these extra advantages cost little or nothing in many cases Verco costs no more than sand plaster, Guenther contends, and wherever a plaster wall is called for, Verco is replacing the old type sand mixture in homes, apartments, hospitals, churches, schools, offices, in new construction, and in remodeling.

Exclusive

Verco Insulating Plasters are manufactured by the Guenther Cement Products Company from processes and materials developed by and obtainable only through the Minnesota Vermiculite Company, Minneapolis. For complete details, estimates, and color charts Guenther's advise phoning 958, or making a personal visit.

Barrett's Broad Shadow Shingles, also handled by the Guenther firm, are maintained to be not alone strikingly handsome but scientifically designed and painstakingly manufactured with the object of providing a roof economical in cost which will stand the test of time. Before buying a new roof, Guenther's advise consideration of the distinctive features of this line of shingles.

Included in the long list of features which make Barrett shingles stand out, are added thickness where the wear is greatest, greater fire resistance, extra weather protection, longer life, more substantial in appearance and fact... heavier shadows... greater eye appeal, beautiful new solid colors and blends, right prices, and lower cost resulting from the saving of removing old roofing since Barrett shingles are laid right over existing roof materials, thereby effecting additional economy. In improved insulation with the combined old and new roofs reducing fuel costs. Other lines and products offered by Guenther's include the nationally known line of Minnesota tested paints and varnishes, cement, plaster, concrete blocks, lime bird baths, colored plaster, and burial vaults.

NASH 'SLEEPING CAR' IS POPULAR

It looks like a big summer ahead for touring and outdoor life, according to Nash dealers who report that interest in their new bedroom auto is great in all parts of the country. The bed can be made up in the rear of any new Nash four-door sedan in a few minutes' time. It offers perfect security as the doors can be locked. Fresh air is supplied through the Nash "Weather Eye" conditioned air system. It's the modern way to journey to distant streams where the fishing is best, in the opinion of Dorothy Arnold, New Universal starlet, who shows you what this summer's "fisherettes" will wear. Helen Parrish, also of New Universal, is watching from the "bedroom."

The beautiful new Nash cars may be seen and driven by contacting the Auto Sales Co., 124 E. Washington street. The telephone number is 888.

Highways Tempt Motorists; Cost Cut by Jahnke Co.

Wrecking Firm Has Large Stock of Parts Just Like New

Motoring is a favorite and most enjoyable pastime especially during the pleasant summer months. The family automobile during this season of the year is, consequently, put to more and harder use than at any other time.

There are so many places of interest to drive to, the roads tempt the vacationist to take a "trip" and short evening drives after a hard day's work are pleasantly anticipated and Sundays are days when the entire family likes to take extended journeys.

Car owners with a limited budget for summer pleasure drives are invited to investigate the low cost advantages of the variety of services offered by the Jahnke Wrecking Company. These services, Jahnke's explained, are especially designed to lower automobile upkeep and reconditioning costs which are made necessary by this increased mileage.

Many automobile repair bills, for example, may be considerably lower, this firm points out, by making use of its used parts service. Often times new parts used in place of old or broken parts are unnecessary purchases. Jahnke's believe, since its large stock of quality, low cost used parts might easily be substituted in many cases without sacrificing the quality of the repair job. The parts which this firm salvages generally are exceptionally serviceable and often have undergone little wear for many of them, Jahnke's explain, are removed from practically new cars which are made useless because of an accident.

The Jahnke Wrecking Company, route 1 Menasha, offers services which hundreds of local motorists for years have profitably shared in. Included among them, are dealing in new and used parts, accessories of every description, the sale of good, used tires at worthwhile savings, the repair of damaged cars, the sale of used cars, and modern towing service which is available until 10 p. m. nightly.

Interpret Idea In Printing Say Petersen Experts

Care and Understanding Necessary for Satisfactory Results

Planning a piece of printed material, isn't merely putting some lines and letters on a piece of paper, explains the Petersen Press, well-known commercial and private printing firm. It encompasses far more than the mechanical and technical knowledge which is evident to some people.

But, discerning people, this firm believes, realizes that behind the artist's brushes, back of the typographer's layouts and composition, before the pressman ever get sight of the forms—under and around and above all of this is an IDEA which is being interpreted by those who work out the details.

Backed by the confidence built during its 18 years of printing business experience in Appleton, Petersen's believe that its organization can assist in the development of ideas that will help business concerns in deciding just what form of printing it can use to advantage and, in addition, believes that it's modern printing plant, worked by men of excellent ability, can produce it combined that comprises what some of its clients have been good enough to call "distinguished service."

Like other printers, Petersen's strive to produce work of which it can be proud to have had a part in planning and making. In addition, however, Petersen Press prefers to take just a little more time in turning out its printing jobs than seems absolutely necessary so that it may put into its work that type of craftsmanship which distinguishes good work from the mediocre.

Samples of the firm's printing will gladly be shown without the slightest obligation to those who will stop at its local headquarters, 604 W. College avenue. If this is inconvenient, the firm's representative, "Hap" Waltman, will gladly stop at the home or business office of interested prospects who "phone 1384 and request this service."

SHOW SECTION OF KRIECK'S FUR VAULT

Above is shown a section of the refrigerated for storage vault at the Kriek Furs headquarters, 220 E. College avenue. The vault is completely insulated, and is kept at scientifically correct cold temperatures by a General Electric refrigeration plant that circulates 8,000 cubic feet of cold, dust-free air steadily. The visitor to this vault—and every fur coat owner is urged to see this modern type of construction—will be impressed by the completely clean interior that is reflected in the hospital white painted surfaces.

Kriek's vault, plus Kriek's methods, insure that every fur in it is completely protected and insured against heat, dust, moth, fire and dampness. Since these can lurk in every home, there is obviously no economy in attempting to store furs at home where there is little defense against one or more of these dangers. As a matter of fact it is far cheaper to use Kriek's storage facilities than to gamble with an expensive fur coat.

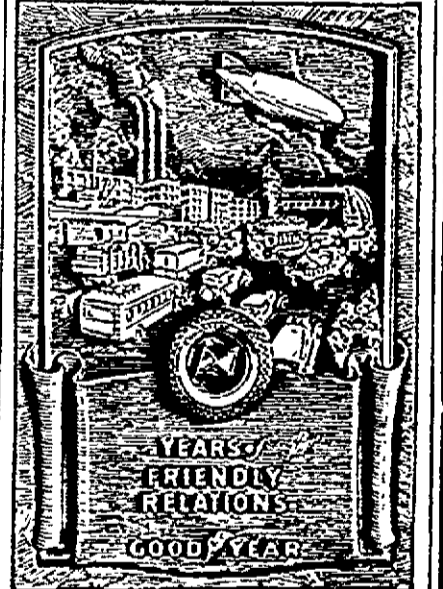

Special rates on cleaning furs are now in effect at Kriek's. A call to 1078 will bring a bonded messenger to promptly call for furs. The Kriek staff will be more than happy to have readers come to the beautiful new store for a visit that involves absolutely no obligation.

Gibson Company Winner of Award

Plaque, Letter From Litchfield for 15 Year Record

In recognition of 15 years of pleasant dealings with the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Gibson Tire Co., local dealers for the big rubber company has just received a very attractive plaque, which now hangs in a conspicuous place in the dealer's office.

Accompanying the plaque was a personal letter from P. W. Litchfield, president of Goodyear, expressing the company's appreciation of the loyalty maintained by the dealer through the years, along with the hope that the pleasant relations may continue indefinitely.

In the center foreground of the plaque are shown the main plant of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company and the huge Goodyear-Zeppelin Airship Dock, the latter being the largest building in the world without interior supports. There also appears in an attractive arrangement a Goodyear All-Weather Tread tire encircling the Goodyear house flag. Other modes of transportation are also displayed.

In symbolizing the progress of transportation facilities the plaque brings to mind the important part Goodyear has played in giving ready stimulus to all business.
